While others were still trying we were succeeding. Coming from a background of rich heritage and tradition, we continued to strive for the ultimate in everything we did. We had all the prestige and pride, that came with a school that had existed since 1856.

During the last 127 years, we had brought home two state basketball championships and three state runner up titles. We arrived at our goal of establishing a super football team that rose from rags to riches in just a few short years.

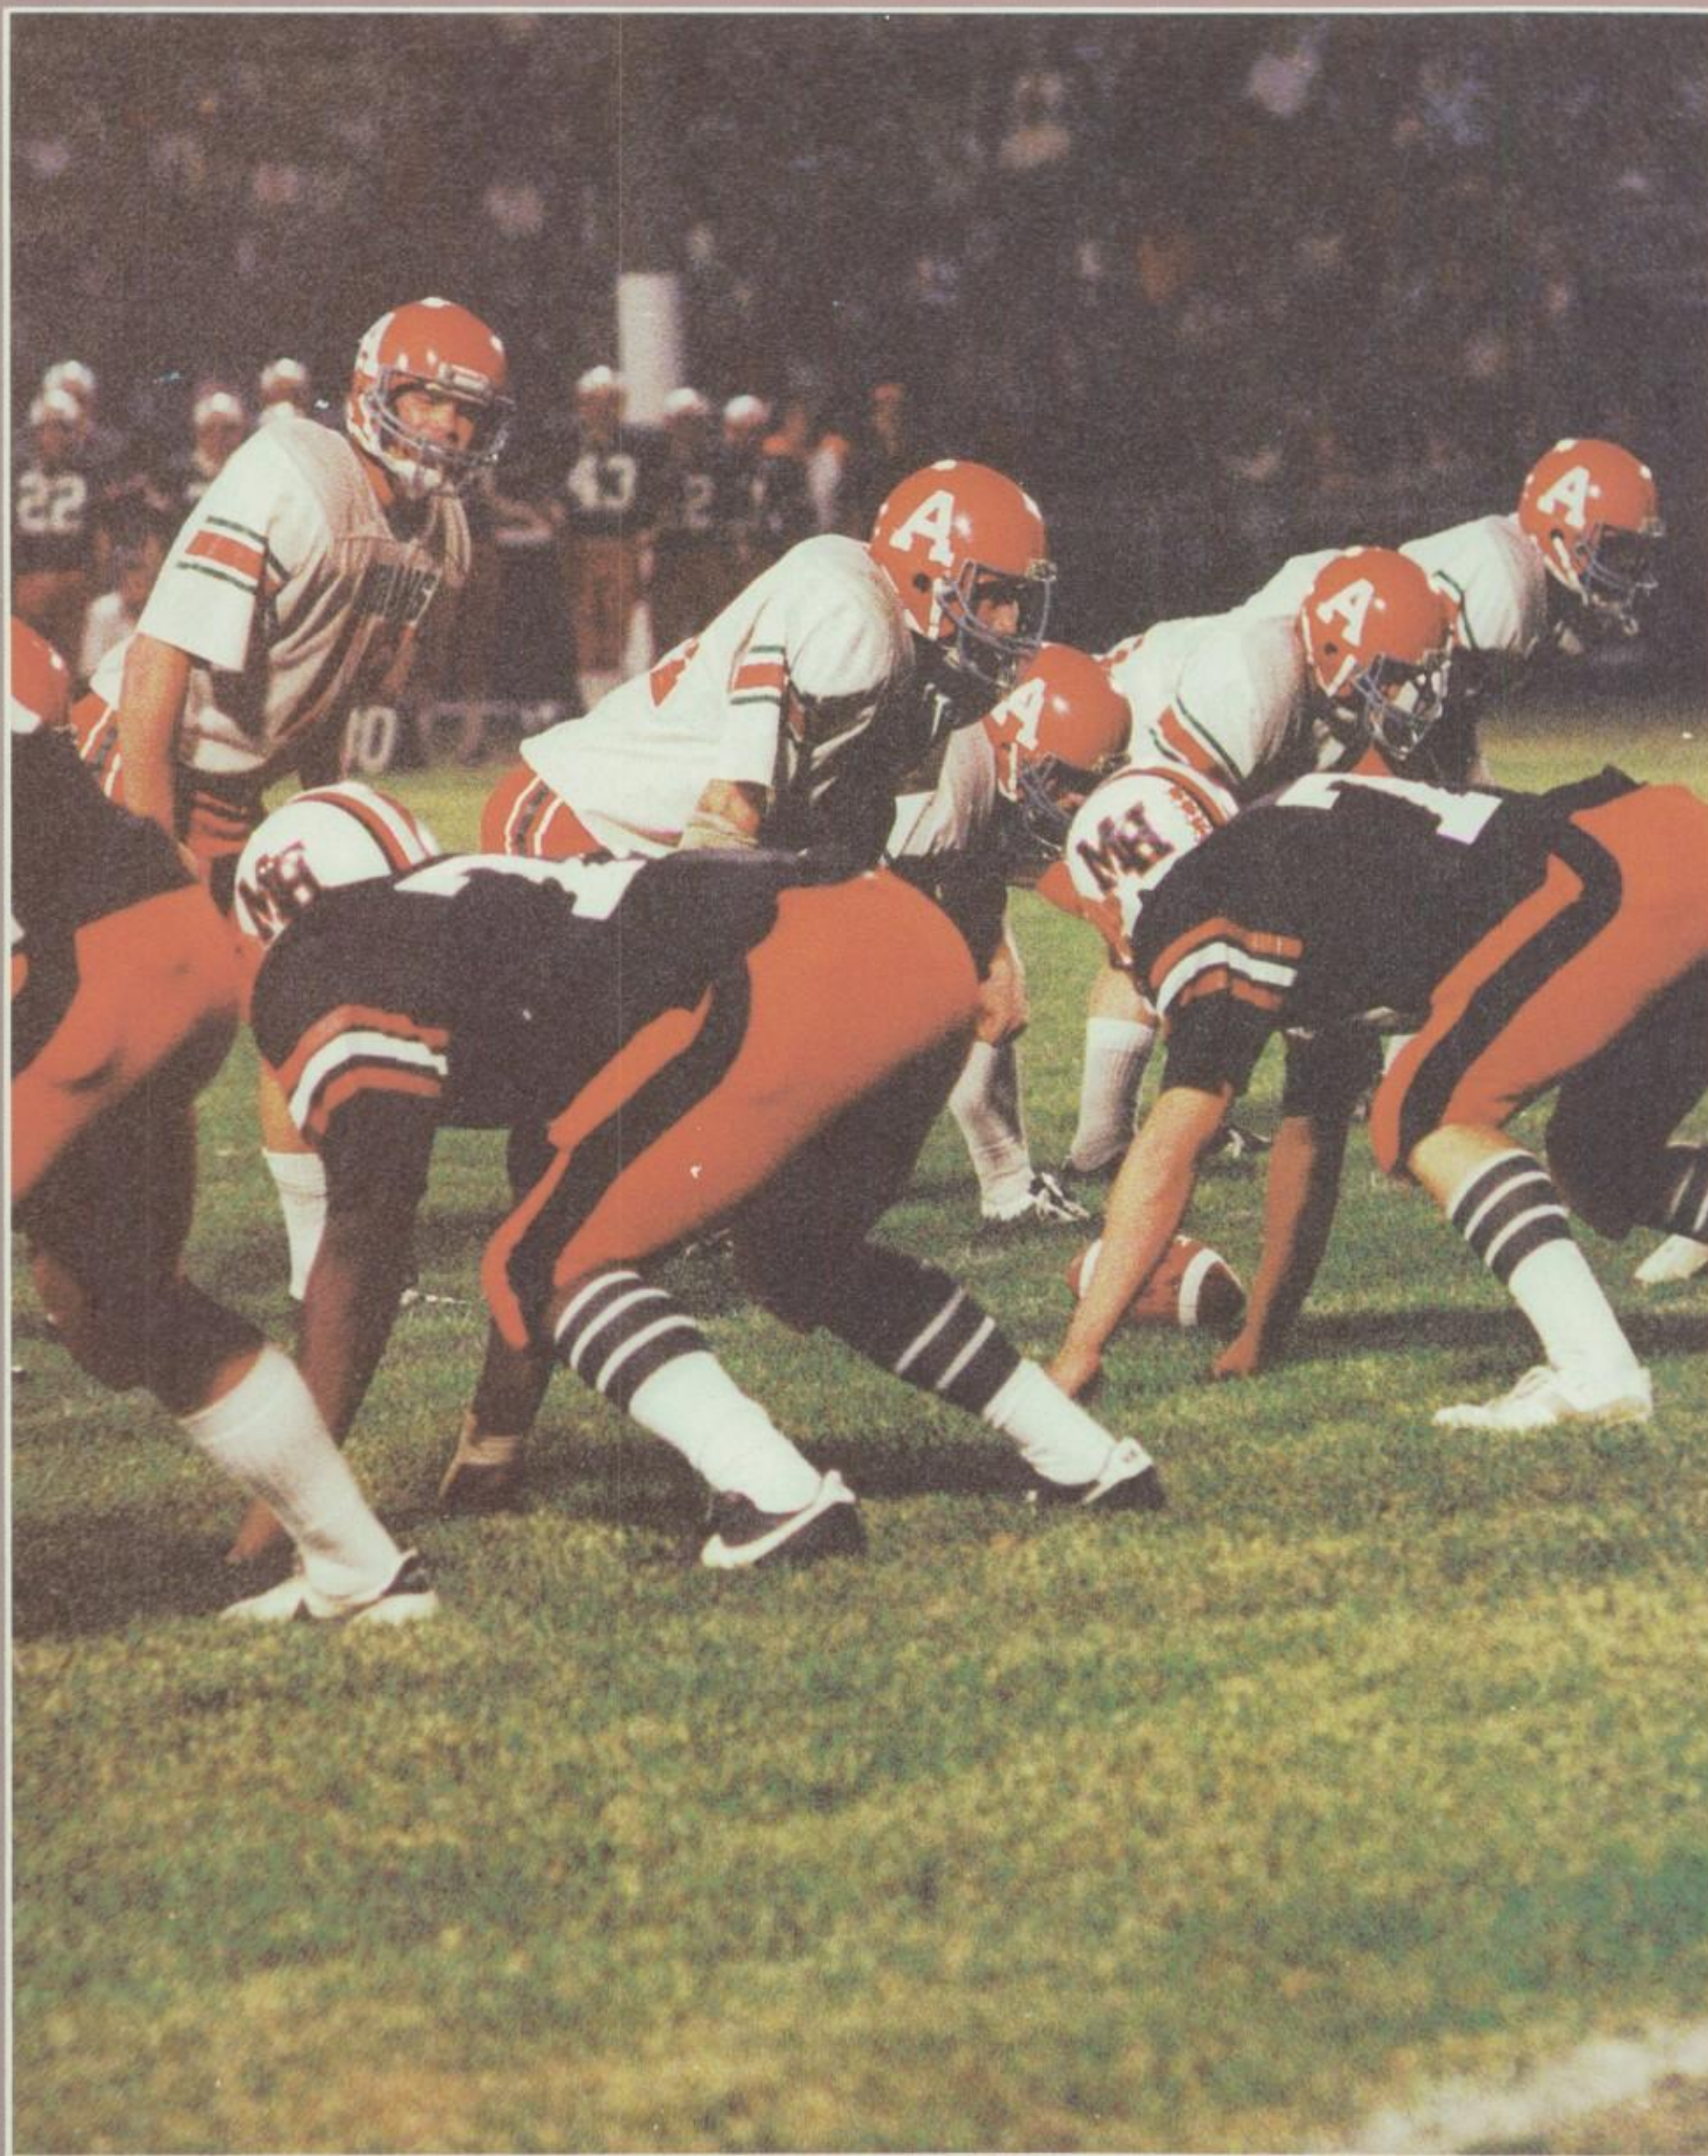

We were the shape of things to come; we set the ground

Excellence comes with tradition

rules, and we set the pace when it came to spirit and pride. We were still one of the few high schools in Indiana who had an acappello performing group, the Madrigals, still the only school to have a traditional warrior's dance, still the only school to have open lunch hours, and still the only school to have its own train that conveniently stopped in front of the school.

It didn't matter how hard others tried, our prestige just couldn't be matched — our stature was often imitated, but never equalled.

We still had pizzaz; We still had spirit; We still had class; The best around, We were still having fun — We're STILL the one!

One, two, three . . . Warming up muscles is time consuming but it builds great football players like Buddy Youngblood.

Band people will do anything for fun. Greg Eldridge and David Cripe find time for shaving lessons after practice is over at band camp.

We're still having fun

Every day of every month, AHS freshmen, sophomores, juniors and seniors got out of their warm, cozy beds while the entire household was sound asleep. They prepared for school, came to spend a seven hour day and still loved and cherished the Indian name.

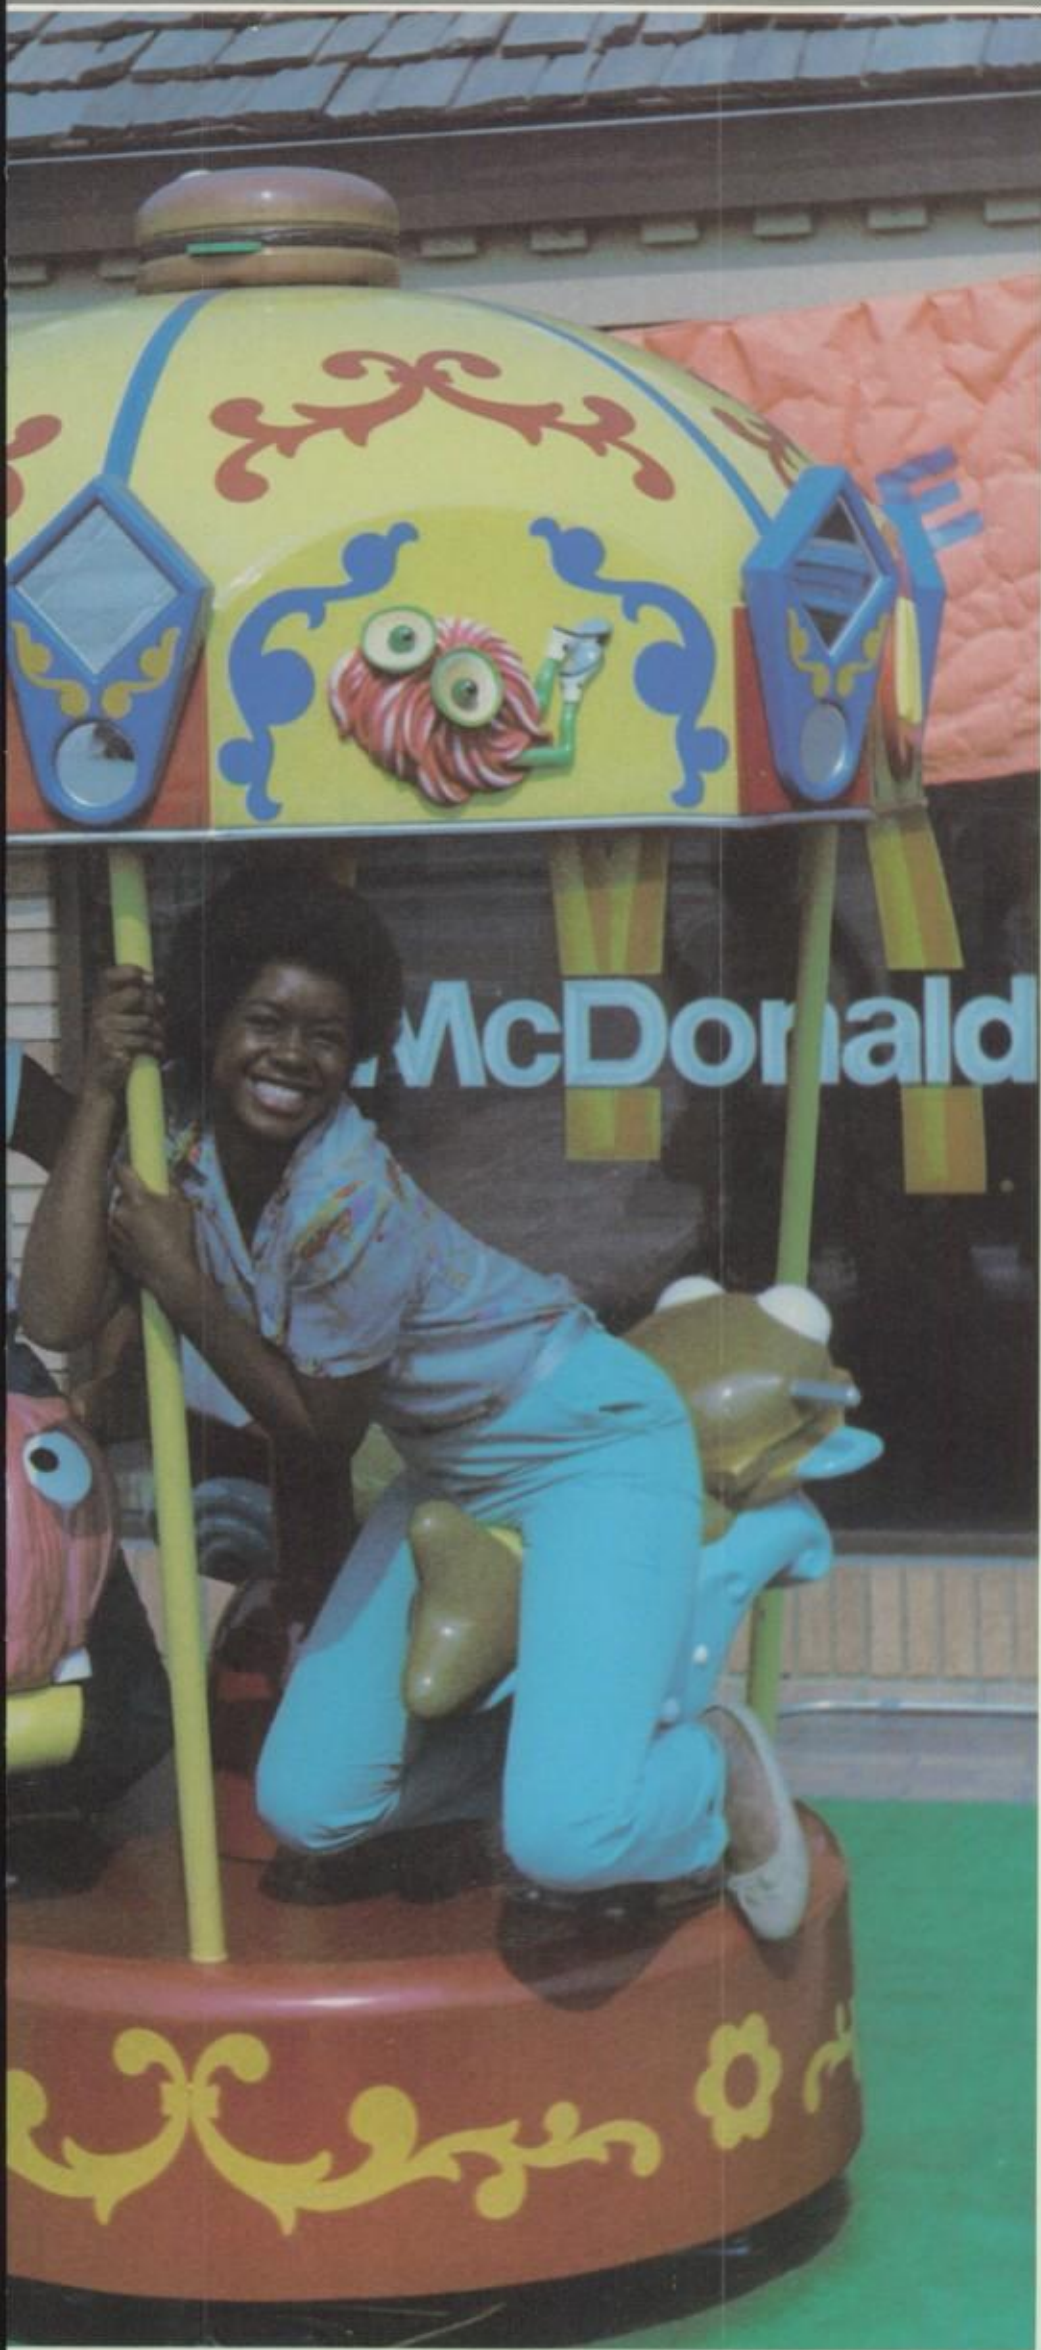

There were those famous days when your boyfriend walked that freshman girl to class!! What a tragedy!! Then there were the days when he stuck that sweet love letter in your locker and all was peachy keen again.

We pondered over who to ask out, where to eat lunch, who to bum a ride from, and whether to sit in the A-Club section at basketball games and risk getting kicked out.

We stuck through it all as a group ... as a tribe.

Now how old are we, girls? Doreen Simpson and Leona Glazebrooks play "cutsie" on the McDonald's merry-go-round during lunch.

Ahhh . . . Look at that firework! The Anderson Free Fair held a July fourth firework display which attracted many Oooh's and Ahhh's.

hhhh summer ... the time of year for students to do what they want when they want and how they want! When it was light enough in the morning that they didn't have to fumble around to find the car door, and when it was warm enough that their cars didn't die ten times on the way to school; summer was on its way.

Some could have skied all weekend at their lake cottage, ridden the waves in Florida or soaked up those ultra-violent rays in the back yard. There weren't any tests to study for, and best of all no mornings that began with the ringing of that nagging alarm.

Three care-free months restored the livelihood of the students by giving them time to enjoy themselves. Worries were put aside while good times and happiness took over.

Lazy, crazy days of summer

ummer . . . a synonym for good times and high spirits. At a friend's house, the drive-in or a concert students mingled and shared summer experiences. Hanging out at a local pool everyday, some students strived for a golden tan to take back to school, only to lose it the first week back.

For those lucky enough, Florida, Michigan, Colorado and Minnesota were the settings for their summer camps and vacations. While at Young Life camp they "white water" rafted, mountain climbed and repelled (some for the first time). When all else failed, they sat at home glued to the T.V., munching on junk food and watching soaps.

Lazy afternoons and late nights caused students to relish the few warm months left before fall arrived. Unfortunately though, all things must end and when that alarm started buzzing at six o'clock once again there were only the pleasant memories of those lazy summer days to prepare them for the not-so-fun days ahead.

After a hard day of bike riding, Pam Martin and Stephanie Lamey pedal to the drive-up window to get something cool to drink.

It's a wet job but somebody has to do it. Lori Ridenour finds sitting on the band's dunking booth at the Free Fair isn't so glamorous.

Cats step aside for Indians

ats, step aside for Indian Pride! They did just that during the homecoming game at Denny Field when the Indians scalped the Kokomo Wild Cats 17-14.

During the morning pep session, Senior Mike Shively was announced to have the winning smile in the football team smile contest sponsored by Student Council. His prize was a bag of Hersheys kisses while second place winner, Buddy Youngblood was awarded the sack for his prize. It was also designated that Senior Phil Sullivan liked everyone and everyone like him.

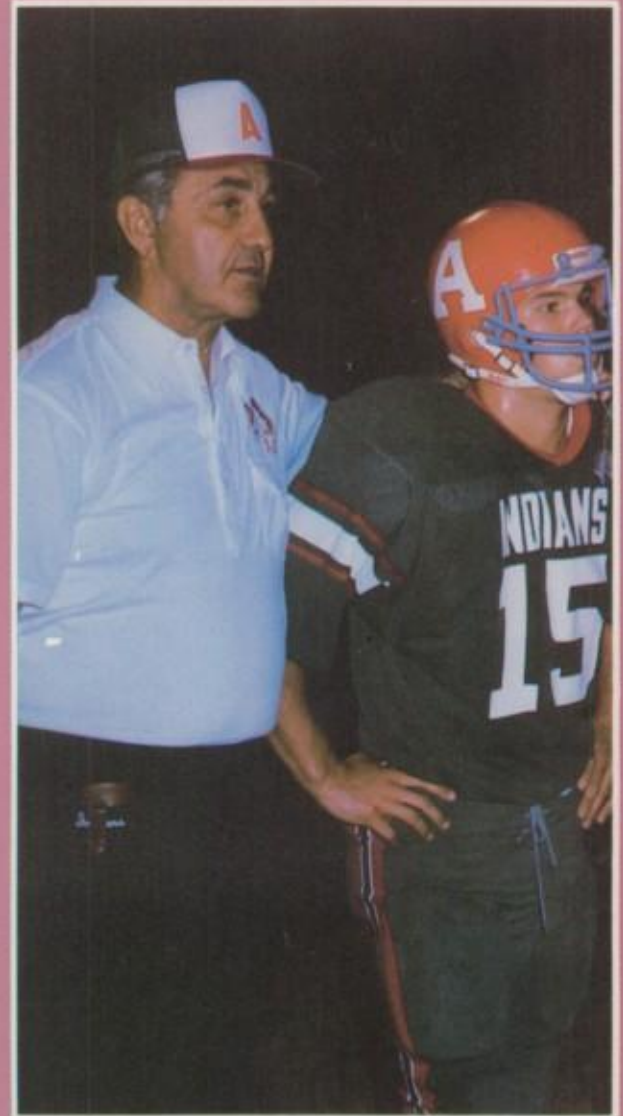

The homecoming queen election was done differently than in the past. There were three lovely princesses. One girl was chosen from each of the underclasses. The junior princess was Michele Owens, sophomore Susan Abell and freshman Dawn White. Only a senior could be the queen, and there were three candidates. Darla Payne was crowned queen during half-time. Celeste Anderson and Kathy Miller were her attendants.

The Homecoming dance was held at Denny Field. 124 students attended.

Whiz Raymond Wilson stops 'em dead in their tracks (and flat on their faces) as he runs the field for another touchdown.

"Go get 'em Sully!" Coach Russo analyzes the activity on the field and prepares to send Phil Sullivan back on the field for some exciting action.

Yeah, Seniors Mark Bish, Terry Vctor and Phil Edmonson have the spirit! The senior float won fourth place at Homecoming. Who cares if only four floats were entered?!

Mike Jackson and Ann Powers find a nice, quiet park in Edgewood to be alone and enjoy each other's company on a long, late September school day.

For everything, there is . . .

A

season. Spring, summer, fall and winter — for each individual student there was a season.

How did we spell relief? S-U-M-M-E-R! After nine long months of school and extra curricular activities, summer provided the much needed rest.

The bitterness of winter nipped noses on dark mornings as students trudged up to the school building. The bedreaded fear of slipping on the ice accompanied the winter woes. Yet the heart of winter captured most of us at sometime or another. The mornings that the new fallen snow glim-mered on the trees were remembered for their captivating picture (even high school students had a touch of sentiment in their hearts).

Spring and autumn were the milder of the seasons. Spring made the debut with rain, flowers and rainbows. Autumn bore the thrill of falling leaves, football games, sweaters, and hot chocolate.

The seasons were a part of students' lives . . . and AHS students knew how to make the best of each and every change.

Therese Gatton sips her steaming hot chocolate to warm up her cold red nose as the chilly weather of October rolls around.

When all else fails ... talk on the phone! Mary Beth Carter and Jill Alexander learn all of the latest scoop from Angie Stanley (other line).

In order to form a firm, muscular body, Steve Walsh and Jay Shaffer "pump iron" at Steve's house daily at 3:00 sharp.

Not all dates cost money. John Geisinger and Lynda McGuire just enjoy each other's company as they re-live their childhood at Edgewood Elementary School.

Everybody needs . . . friends

ey, Susie, do you want to cruise Broadway with me Friday night?"

Friends and sweethearts were what high school was all about as far as AHS students were concerned. Just being with a special friend made the best of any bad situation. "A friend is someone who will stick with you through thick and thin, who's crazy and wild, and who's fun to be with," commented senior Karen Gahimer.

Movies were a popular place for dates. At $3.50 a ticket, most couples did not go every weekend. During the later part of a date, parking at Shady Side, Davis Park or Main Street Cemetery was a favorite for "getting acquainted."

Not all students "played the field." There was always a girl in the hallway with a class ring on her finger that could have fit on her big toe, and a guy with a tiny class ring on a chain dangling from his neck.

"You cheater!" Cheating is the only way to win when it comes to playing cards with Scott Held, Mitch Phelps, Tony Wilde and John Hay.

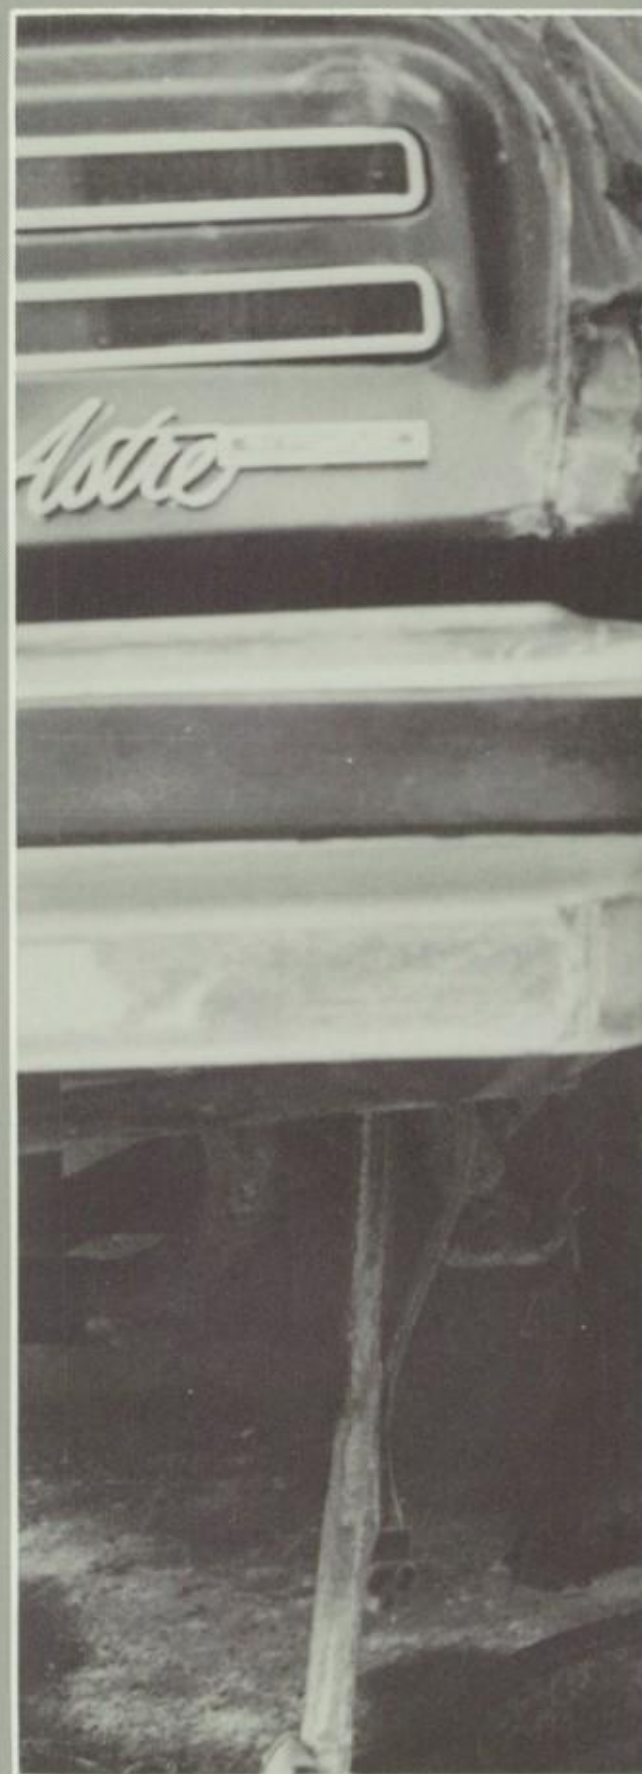

Most younger couples aren't allowed to date yet, but who says there's anything wrong with watching TV at someone's home? Theresa Gavin and Scott Baker prove that staying home on the weekend isn't always boring.

"Let's go see 'ET'!" Ron McGrady and David Jackson take their girls, Dawn White and Shelly Terry to see "ET" at the State Theatre.

Who said "All work and no play"? Cindy Gavin and Shelley Wykoff manage to sneak in a few words of gossip while working at Ponderosa.

It's that time again! Students rush out of the building after school. Some were going home and others to work, but all were taking advantage of the time left after school.

2:25 . . . Saved by the bell

hen the 2:25 bell rang, books were slammed shut and warriors trampled to their lockers . . . school was history for the day. It was time again for the Indians to do their own thing.

Loads of students had jobs to go to after school. Their paychecks allowed them to learn to manage their money and help out with a few of their own expenses such as car insurance, gas, clothes and entertainment.

Book reports and research papers were known killers, or at least seemed that way, at AHS. Many students stayed up until the wee hours of the morning just to finish their homework. (But they should have listened to their parents and started before bedtime.)

The majority of the AHS student body claimed to be bums and admitted that laying around home listening to the radio or watching TV was the ideal way to spend the hours after school.

Be kind to others! Therese Laudick and Ronda Newton and other members of CHO "adopt a retarded friend."

Nadine Leffel brushes up on her clarinet everyday to perfect her playing.

Only the "cool dudes" dress in the G.Q. fashion. Just ask Bronson Lightford, Guy Nave and Richard Patterson.

The life of an alligator lover, or "preppie," suits Carol Trice, Steve Laudick and Mary Pat Tierney just fine.

The dating game

It's seven o'clock and the man of your dreams is due at your front doorstep anytime now. At the last minute check you give yourself a mental check, and suddenly realize you forgot to put on deodorant. Dates seldom functioned smoothly. Things that go wrong on dates were as follows: 1. Get caught parking. 2. You or your date fall on the ice. 3. Go to kiss . . . and miss. 4. Get lost in Indy. 5. You call your date by someone else's name. 6. You run into an ex-sweetheart. 7. Someone gets a "gas attack." 8. You get a flat tire. 9. The boy forgets his wallet. 10. The boy hits the girl when putting his arm around her.

There's nothing worse than slipping on the ice when you're with your girl! Lance Goen is a bit shaken while Carol Johnson lends her hand and helps him up.

"Get with it Dan!" Believe it or not, Dan Toombs pulled the 'ol "forgot my wallet" stunt. Luckily, Traci Wulle had a little cash with her.

The punk look is THE look for Marla Ellis.

G.Q., punk, prep, or what?

If only Liz Claiborne could see us now! Spirits were up and high fashion dressing was in. There was absolutely no "set" style of dressing for the entire crowd.

The "Vogue" style was a big craze for the sophisticates of the gang. This was the look of fashions seen in Made-moiselle and Cosmopolitan.

Then there were those who desired to be different and "daring". They were the "punks". Stripes, polka dots, brights and metallics signaled the oncoming of a punk dresser.

And lo and behold, there remained the loyal alligator fans or "Preppies". Duck shoes, crew neck sweaters and assorted colored oxfords were a sure giveaway of a gator lover.

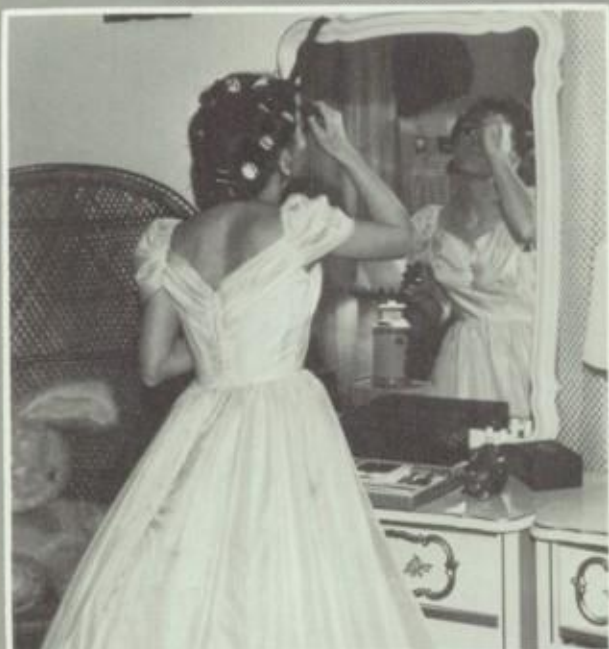

Hair styles fell in the category of "miscellaneous." Shiny locks came in numerous lengths and even in a mixture of shades.

Though dressing up was in, there was an assortment in every wardrobe to keep the halls interesting sites.

Indian royalty "steps out"

onths of jitters, endless days of dress hunting, infinite hours of makeup application and hair curling resulted in the extravagant evening of the Prom.

Prom was the night for virtually all juniors and seniors. It was the climax to end the year. The evening began at 2:30 when school was released. The troops rushed home to escape into the world of "dress up." Then came dinner. Ah, that steak tasted heavenly! The Wigwam had miraculously been turned into New York City with a theme of "Steppin' Out" and heels were kicked up to dance the night away. Later, the lights dimmed to shimmering darkness and it was time for the crowning of a new queen. Ann Powers was given the dignity of the cherished title. Christy Campbell and Jamie McCoy were also honored as her attendants.

Post-Prom was an exciting time for most. Parties were held until the wee hours of the morning, and then it was home to sleep for the coming weekend. King's Island was a popular place to spend the following day, yet "the Lakes" was also common. Whatever the individual couple decided, it was a glorious weekend to finish the school year.

Groups demand time, talent

Are you going to ask someone to Twirp?"

"I don't know if I'll have the guts." Twirp was the dance in which the girls invited the guys and picked up the tab. This along with Fall Wind Up were the two dances put on by Student Council.

Among their other activities were the two Christmas fund raising activities, an ice skating party, and the traditional Student Council-Faculty basketball game. This year, though, the tradition was broken by replacing it with a volleyball game instead.

Another group of students that worked together was the Mayor's City Youth Commission. It was made up of ambitious students from AHS as well as Madison Heights and Highland who met to discuss city problems and learn about the parliamentary procedure.

The Mayor's Advisory Board chose 15 students from each of these schools as members. Member T.D. Smith stated, "It's a long drawn-out process (to get on the commission) but it's a good experience to go through even if you don't make it."

It's all done just for fun!

When trees were covered in white and it hadn't been snowing ... when car windows looked frosted and it wasn't freezing ... there was only one explanation. It was Halloween! Yes, Halloween was not only a time for ghosts, goblins, spooks, witches and candy, but for many AHS students Halloween was the season for pranks.

Toilet paper, soap, eggs, and corn were the necessary equipment. There was not any special skill involved. Anyone with good arms for throwing toilet paper and fast legs for running could do it. The goal was to get harmless revenge on an enemy or to play a practical joke on a friend. Some vandals, though, went beyond fun and joking to cruelty by smashing pumpkins. But whatever prank they played most students found that it did not get them anywhere but in trouble. There was always the fascination and suspense of getting caught, but it faded when they were faced with the possible task of cleaning up the mess they created.

ndians, how do you feel?" What would the wigwam have sounded like without the varsity cheerleaders organizing all of the cheers? The six dedicated girls enthused the Indian fans during all varsity football and basketball games and pep-sessions.

These ladies spent a great deal of time practicing their way to perfection. They also made scrapbooks for each of the players and coaches of the varsity teams. The crowd's response to them was all the reward they needed.

Male cheerleaders were an added attraction to the home varsity basketball games. Each cheerleader was an upper classman and had earned a varsity letter.

Entrancement was obvious in the wigwam when the Indian mascot and maiden showed their talent during the Indian war dance at every home basketball game and pep-session. Even the opponents were impressed and definitely awestruck! Seniors Kim Rheam and Jeff Blackburn were a team for two years.

or the red — fight, fight!" The freshmen and reserve cheerleaders were spirited and talented enough to be every little girl's dream ... to be an AHS cheerleader!

The young ladies cheered for their respective teams at all home games and one out of town game. The reserve girls cheered at all home girls' basketball games as well, often having two or three games a week.

Pep-sessions were rare, but during the few AHS had, the Indians were fired up and "R-O-W-D-I-E"!

The responsibilities of the pep-session committee were to plan all pep-sessions, organize Red and Green week and select the cheerleaders. To be on the pep-session committee, one had to sign up on a list posted by the Student Council. From that list, Student Council members selected four freshman, five sophomores, five juniors and six seniors. Nineteen teachers were appointed by Mr. Chadbourne.

Different kicks for different cliques

Weekends were the favorite part of the week for most students because it was their time to do what they wanted. There were a variety of ways to spend the weekend and most of them were determined by the cliques the students were in.

The bookworm scholars, who carried all their books to each class including lunch hour, usually spent their Friday nights doing homework. They used Saturday as a day to get ahead, such as reading extra biology assignments or typing their notes. In their spare time they were easily entertained by reading an encyclopedia.

Hoodlums, better known as "Hoods", did not have to worry about homework because they did not take books home. They lived and partied at night and slept during the day. They spent their valuable spare time discussing cars and counting how many puffs it took for a cigarette to disappear.

The jets conveniently got their homework done early in the week because of already having "cheat notes" to the tests and problems. The weekend was spent discussing where to shop in Indy for the latest fashions.

Socializing at Greenbriar park gives Tony Bollinger and Kevin Remington the opportunity to make plans for the weekend together.

Which color do you like on me? Mary McShane and Betsy Erehart shop for the best while taking a spree through the Mounds Mall.

What? Homework during a free hour? Yep, that's Paul McClure's idea of a good time. Getting some of his work finished at lunch allows him more free time at home.

Lockers

What was nine inches X four and one-half feet and stored books, folders, papers, tests, snacks, coats, gym clothes, shoes, mittens, umbrellas and calculators? Lockers . . . what else?

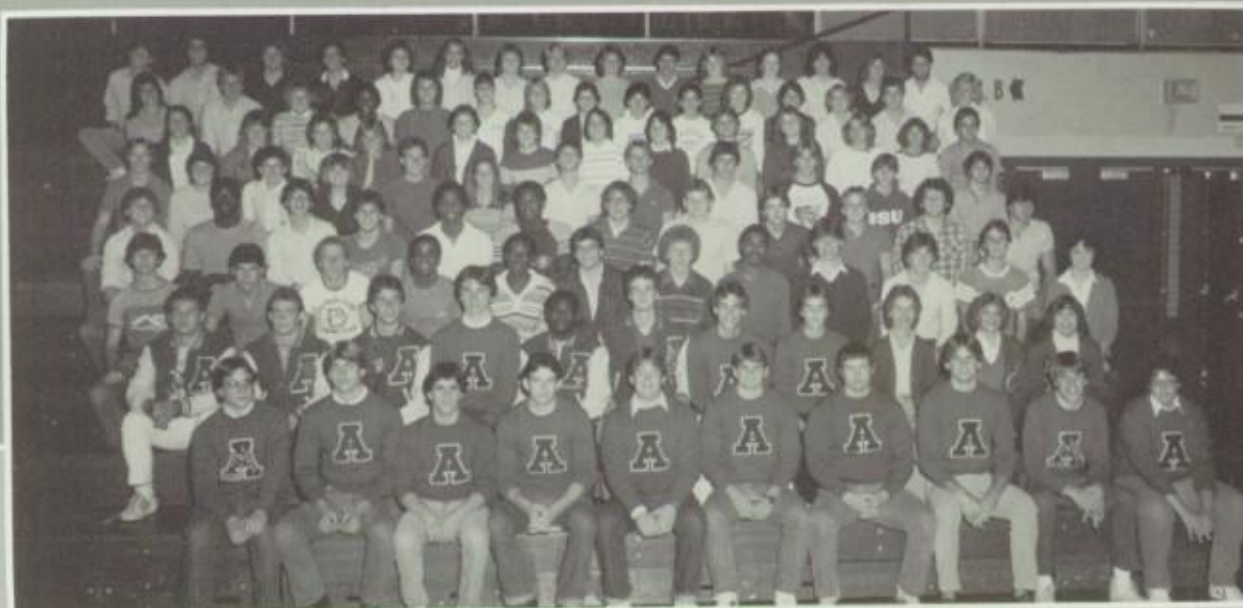

A locker was not just a place to keep school books, papers, and folders; for most students it served as their own personalized junk yard. Pictures of boyfriends and girlfriends or idols covered the insides of lockers along with memo pads on which students left

the inside story

messages to each other.

But for those untidy ones, digging through the rubble at the end of the year became a task. They came across such small wonders as notes passed between friends in class, tests they flunked (never showing them to their parents), and a stale Twinkie left over from last month's lunch.

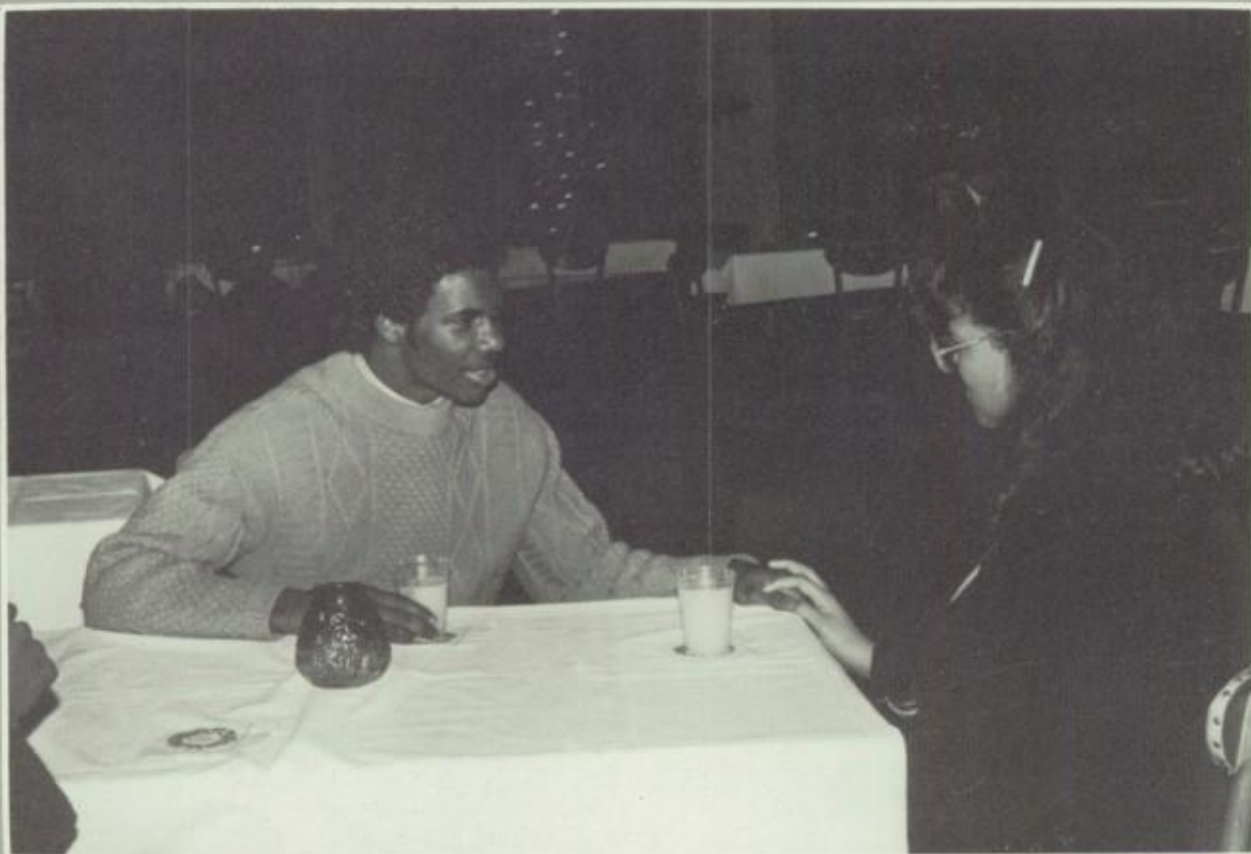

A locker, untouched by a student's junk, looks somewhat boring compared to one overrun with knick knacks and books.

A-Club rings in holidays

ing, Ring, Ring. This was a familiar sound for many A-Club members. Sacrificing precious spare time, they hauled themselves outside to bear the fierce cold and ring bells for the Salvation Army.

A-Club, sponsored by Mrs. Toni Shoemaker and Mr. Nat Johnson, was a group of ambitious students who strived for their goal, an AHS varsity letter. For the first time, a dance was held at Edgewood Country Club for members and their dates to eat and dance the night away.

Cheering right along beside A-Club at basketball games was another enthusiastic group ... Cheerblock. Cheerblock was made up of 60 students who put forth that extra effort to back their Indians by attending every game.

Practicing three to four times a year before big games like Highland and cheering to their fullest were the only requirements for members. Any one could join as long as they were a true Indian and showed school spirit.

Plunging into high school

"Homework on a weekend? Oh no!" The classes of AHS often drew remarks such as this.

Freshmen started out their high school career with the "old faithfuls" biology, algebra and English. As the years progressed, newer courses were added such as trigonometry, chemistry and world civilization.

The clubs, on the other hand, brought a sigh of relief after the long hours in classrooms.

Each organization normally held after school meetings or evening initiations and parties. Many were casual clubs and stuck with the traditional shaving cream and oatmeal initiations. Others preferred the formal setting and held dinners and ceremonies.

Clubs and classes were the backbones of our school and its student body.

Singers and Madrigals sing, dance . . . and all that jazz!

As the houselights dimmed and the curtain rose, 46 people stood with top hats and canes ready to sing and dance their hearts out in the variety show; Encore '82. This large group of people was Singers Unlimited.

Singers and Madrigals had one event in particular that they would put hours of practice into other than Encore '82. It was a contest held at Lebanon High School where they would be judged individually as groups.

They used a Broadway theme this time. As for Madrigals, it was the Madrigal Dinner, done with Old English costumes in a 16th century style. At this dinner the members sang for their supper.

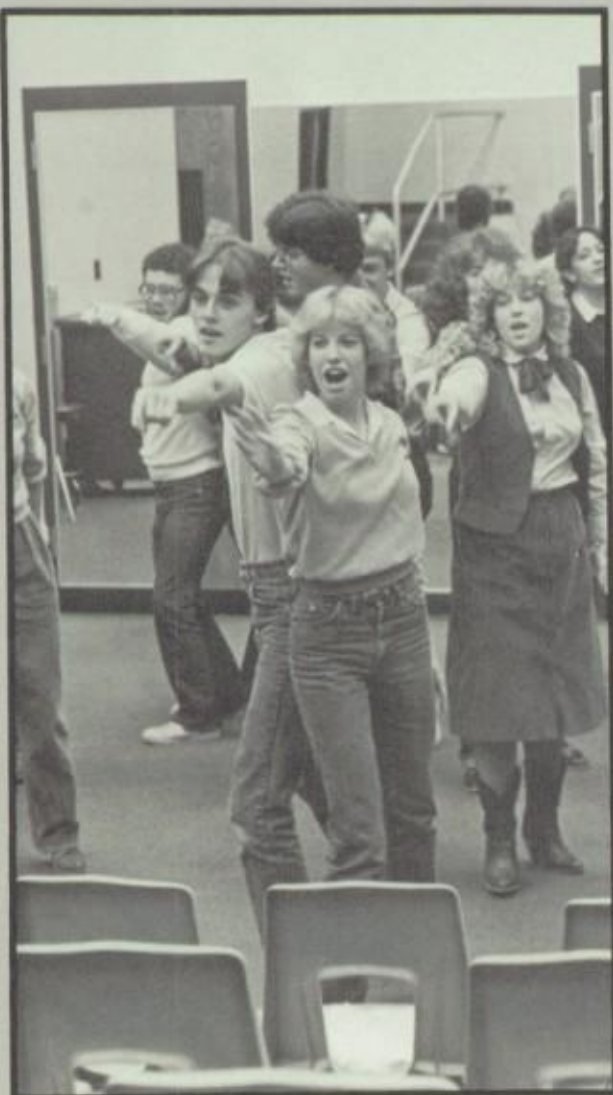

Richard Seaver, head of the Choral Department, knew the amount of new members was comparatively larger than old members. He stated, "It's a challenge and I accept a challenge because I enjoy teaching it."

"Have you heard the latest gossip?" Some members of Madrigals sing their selection of "Telephone Hour" from the musical "Bye Bye Birdie."

No, this isn't the new poster for the army recruit. It's Singers Unlimited practicing "Musical Jambo-ree."

Choral Club and Choralettes sing to strains of 'Encore'

"Encore! Encore!" came the shouts. This cheer seemed very fitting, for "encore" was more than just a cry of "one more time" for the Choral Department. Encore '82 was the name of the variety show which was put on in place of the annual fall musical.

The variety show fared very well, with acts ranging from a barbershop quartet to a performance by the Choral Club straight from the fabulous fifties. Also featured were acts such as the New Creations from Knightstown, Indiana, and a "Fire Baton" duet.

"We wanted to do something different which everyone, not just a few special people, could participate in," said Mr. Richard Seaver, who directed the show.

Thespians expand to provide enjoyment for the public

Picture this: a short, stocky tourist dressed in a Hawaiian print shirt and plaid shorts holding a bomb while his frenzied wife tries to help a priest out of a straight jacket. These were some scenes from the Woody Allen play "Don't Drink the Water" presented by Thespian Troupe 736 in November.

Thespians also wanted to try something new by expanding into the public. "We want to help out in the community by developing a traveling theater to perform in nursing homes," explained Mary Dougherty, Thespian president. They accomplished this by making video tapes of short skits and taking them to the nursing homes.

The Troupe also had their annual spring play festival with four short plays. The plays were judged and awarded trophies for best play, best actress, and best actor.

One more for the road! David Cripe takes one last drink before leaving the stage during tryouts for Thespians. They were required to do a pantomime and a short reading to tryout.

Lights, camera . . . action! Jeff Malsh and Jennifer Luallin perform a short scene while Lance Goen and Mrs. Bridges tape it. This was so the cast could critique their own mistakes.

Phenomenal marchers keep bringing back the trophies

Practice after practice, contest after contest, the Indianettes and Colour Guard kept on marching and bringing back the trophies.

In order to keep their bodies in tone and their muscles flexible, the Indianettes, headed by Mrs. Jan Hoffman, performed various types of exercises.

According to Mr. Charles Hoffman, the purpose of the Colour Guard, made up of flags and rifles, was to make a plain band performance an exciting and appealing one. This group of 62 girls spent their whole summer perfecting their State Fair routines.

These outstanding marchers earned a number of trophies. At the State Fair Band Day they marched to a 3rd place finish, while at the Darke County Fair in Greenville, Ohio, they received the sweepstakes for best show. Along with traditionally performing at football and basketball games, the band visited the Kentucky Derby in the spring.

Oooh . . . watch them strut! The Indianettes, backed by the band, perform just one of their many routines at the State Fair Band Day.

Reach! Smile! Concentrate! Kim Wright performs to the all too familiar instructions from past weeks of long laboring practice.

Band believes that drumming up awards is their business

"A one, an' a two an' a three, an' a ..."

Many people didn't realize it, but that was the real beginning of that all too familiar cheer — "Who are we? AHS!" And as all "good" band members knew, this was a nightly ritual at all boys' varsity basketball and football games.

This was only one of the many rituals that they had. Another "must" was long, grueling hours of practice toward participation in various contests around the state. The hours finally paid off as the Marching Indians competed in Greenville, Ohio and took four category awards (two of which were best music and best dance), and firsts in both the morning and evening shows.

Just two days later, the AHS band marched away with third place on "Band Day" at the State Fair. The band also performed at Winchester and Delaware, placing third and fourth respectively.

Lance Goen seems to be "on top of things" as he leads the band in a halftime show at Denny Field.

Have you Pizza had a piece lately

Have you had a piece lately? No, stupid — PIZZA! You know, all ooey an' gooey, with extra cheese an' mushrooms an' onions an' ...

Pizza. It had to be the absolutely best thing in the world to eat! Pizza was second to none, and AHS students proved that true time and time again, as "The Hut" was by far the most popular place to go after a game.

Everybody had their own tastes, but the favorite pizza seemed to be that old stand-by, the sausage — pepperoni — extra cheese combo. If your tastes turned toward the bizarre, there were even bar-be-que or ham pizzas to "chow down" on.

Have you had a piece yet? If you haven't, you'd better hurry; it'll be all gone!

The X-Ray: an old tradition that is still going strong

With pencil, ruler, lay-out sheet and eraser at hand, the newspaper staff set out to begin another issue of the X-Ray.

The newspaper staff continued work on one of the oldest traditions at Anderson High School. The X-Ray, once known as The Anderson High School Journal, was founded in 1893.

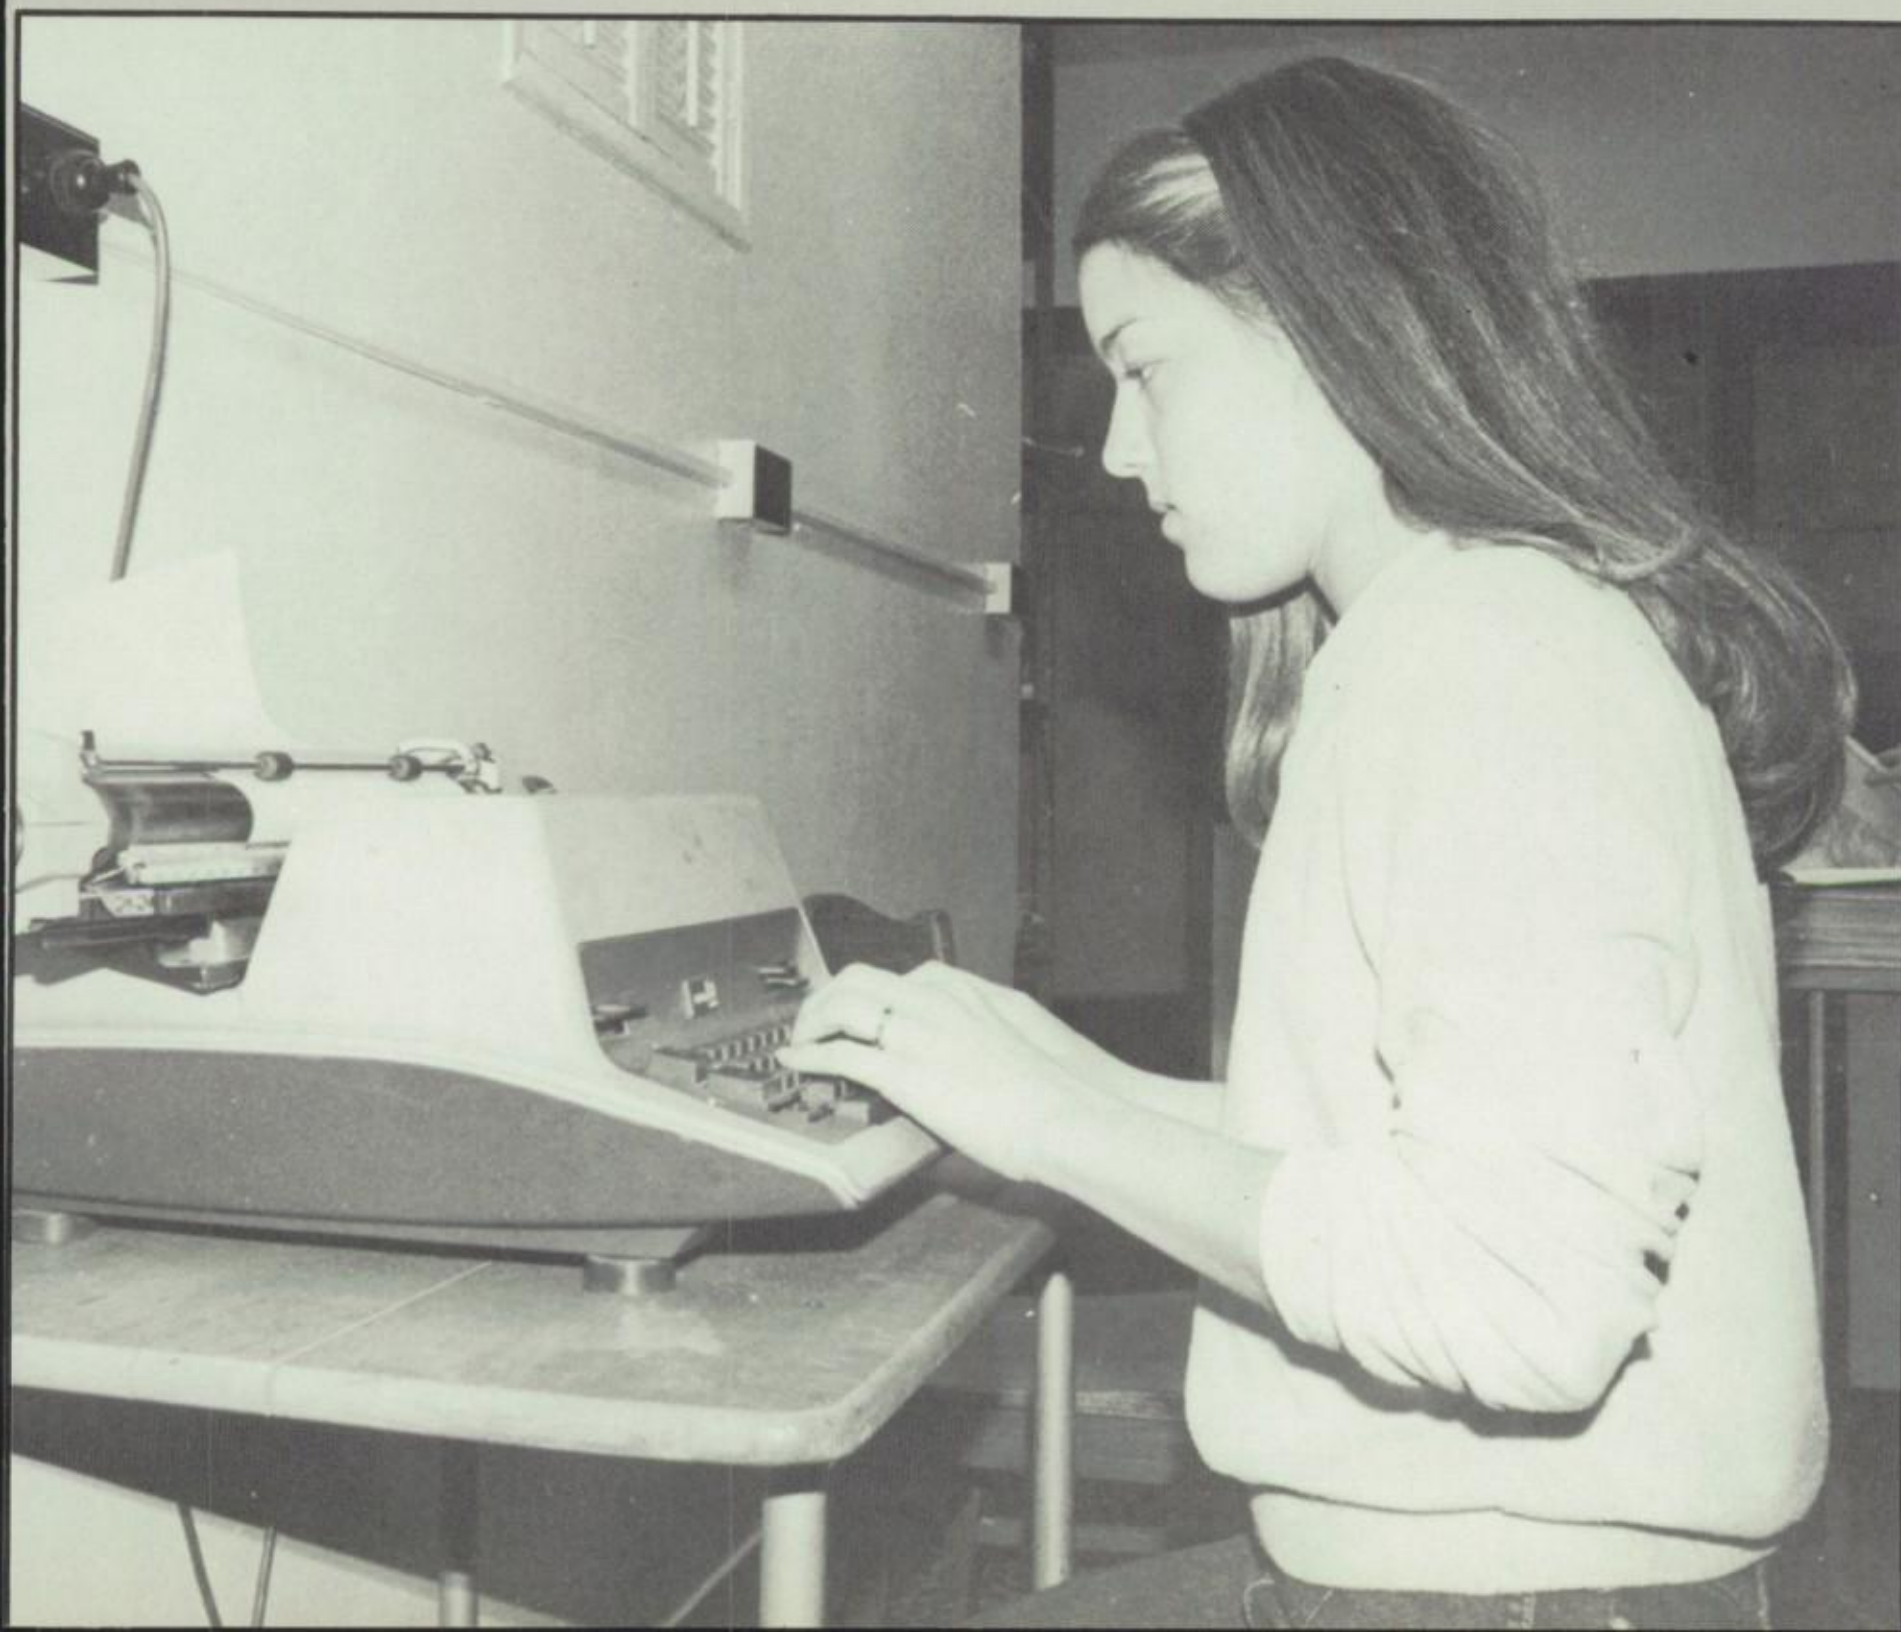

After advising the X-Ray for 32 years, the Little Chief for 15 years, and the Indian for 3 years, Mr. Lee Pursley was still very dedicated to teaching high school journalism. Mr. Pursley felt that a newspaper should be by and for the students and that is exactly what he has accomplished.

There were several positions on the staff. Four editors spent their time writing editorials and proofreading the pages. Although students gained experience while working on staff, Mr. Pursley stated, "If a student is interested in this profession we hope to further their interest, but college is the place to receive professional knowledge."

Peck, peck, peck . . . ding, typist Kris Hornacker busily types away on the numerous stories for the X-Ray.

Looking through past issues of Little Chief is a good way to prepare the new issue of the magazine. That's what editor Paul McClure (center) and associate editors Stephanie Jackson and Steve Walsh decide to do.

Honorary clubs allow pupils to express creative talents

Honor Society, Quill and Scroll and Little Chief staff spent their time racking their brains, staying up late to do homework, and working their fingers to the bone writing.

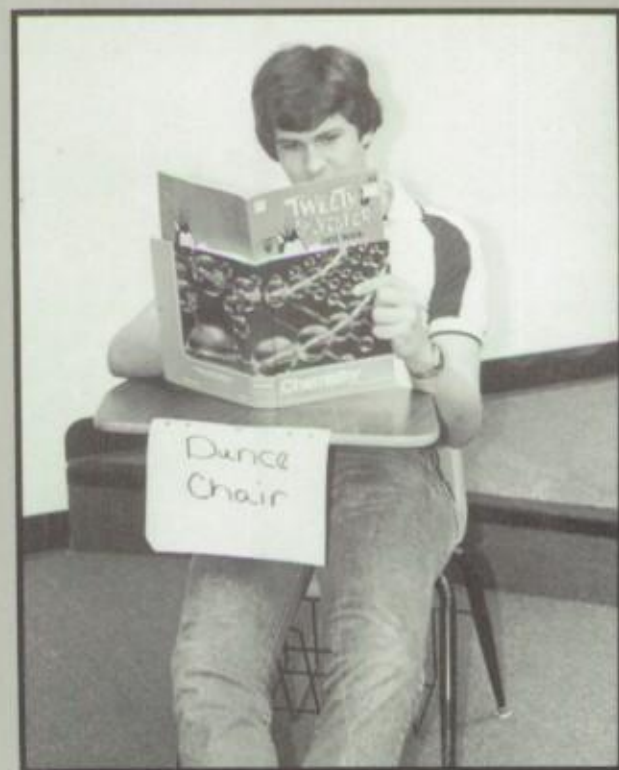

Honor Society was composed of students who achieved a 3.5 grade average or higher by the end of their junior year. It rewarded them for the hard work they put into achieving their grades.

Another honorary club was Quill and Scroll. To become a member, the students had to work on one of the school publications and submit a letter to the sponsors telling what work they had done.

The Little Chief staff selected various works submitted by students who wanted to display their writing and drawing abilities, and then organized them into a magazine.

Well, not all members of Honor Society are "smart" as Paul Conrad demonstrates. He becomes engrossed with Tweety and Sylvester.

After 75 years we're still the one, and still having fun

"Okay, everything is here EXCEPT your pictures. Where are they?"

Well, you see ... I uh ... well uh ... they uh ... they haven't been printed yet!"

"Why not?"

"Well, I told Aaron to take pictures, and he told me he would and then ..."

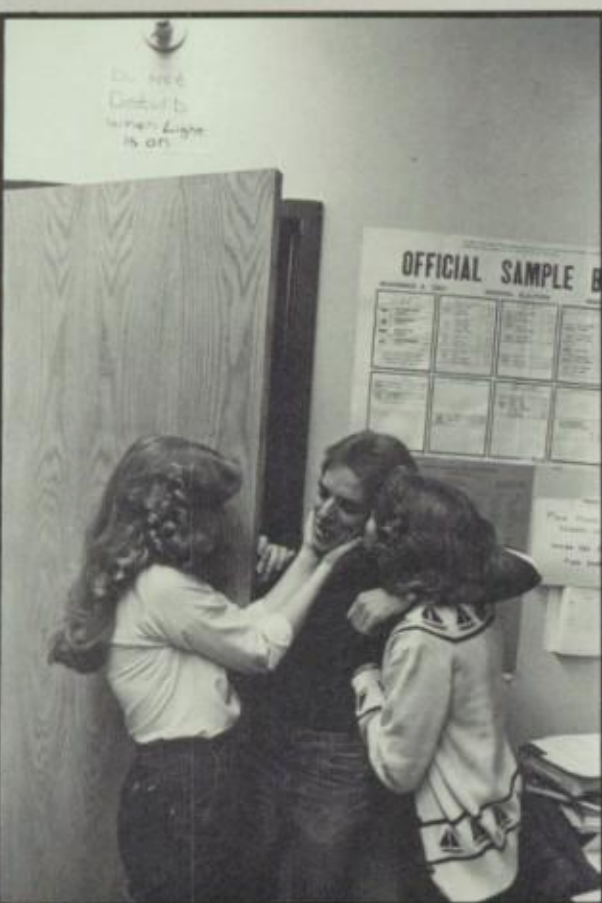

On and on it went, from deadline to deadline, the ever popular excuses. By the end of the year, the staff made up excuses with expertise.

In order to receive their pictures on time for the "Big Deadline," Leigh Ann King and Lynda McGuire butter up photographer Aaron Shapiro with a little "bribery."

In order to improve the yearbook and bring back ideas for the rest of the staff, Celeste Anderson, Leigh Ann King, and Mrs. Mebane attended the Journalism Education Association (JEA) Convention in Chicago. They, along with other staff members, attended Ball State and Hanover yearbook camps during the summer.

Even though it was tough for the staff and the new advisor to get into the hard work routine, they did a great job seeing that the deadlines were met.

But, 7th hour wasn't all work and no play. Parties were held for birthdays, holidays and sometimes for the glory of finally meeting an atrocious deadline.

Readin', writin', researchin', English tackles everything

From Chaucer to Shakespeare to the structure of complex sentences, the English Department at Anderson High School had it all.

English certainly wasn't what it used to be. As AHS students found out the teachers didn't always use conventional methods. For example, many junior Honors English students were required to memorize the Prologue to the Canterbury Tales — in Middle English at that! Sophomore students got their first taste of research papers, and one class even put on S.E. Hinton's play, "The Outsiders." Composition classes were also offered for those wishing to improve their writing skills.

Speech was another class offered by the English Department. Students taking this class gained first-hand experience at speaking in front of groups. Kids excelling in this activity joined the Speech Team, sponsored by Mrs. Jan Slattery. They traveled to area high schools, competing in categories such as impromptu and original oratory.

The oyster emerges from the Social Studies Department

Imagine having the world as your oyster! That was what the Social Studies department, headed by Dr. Jack Nicholson, did.

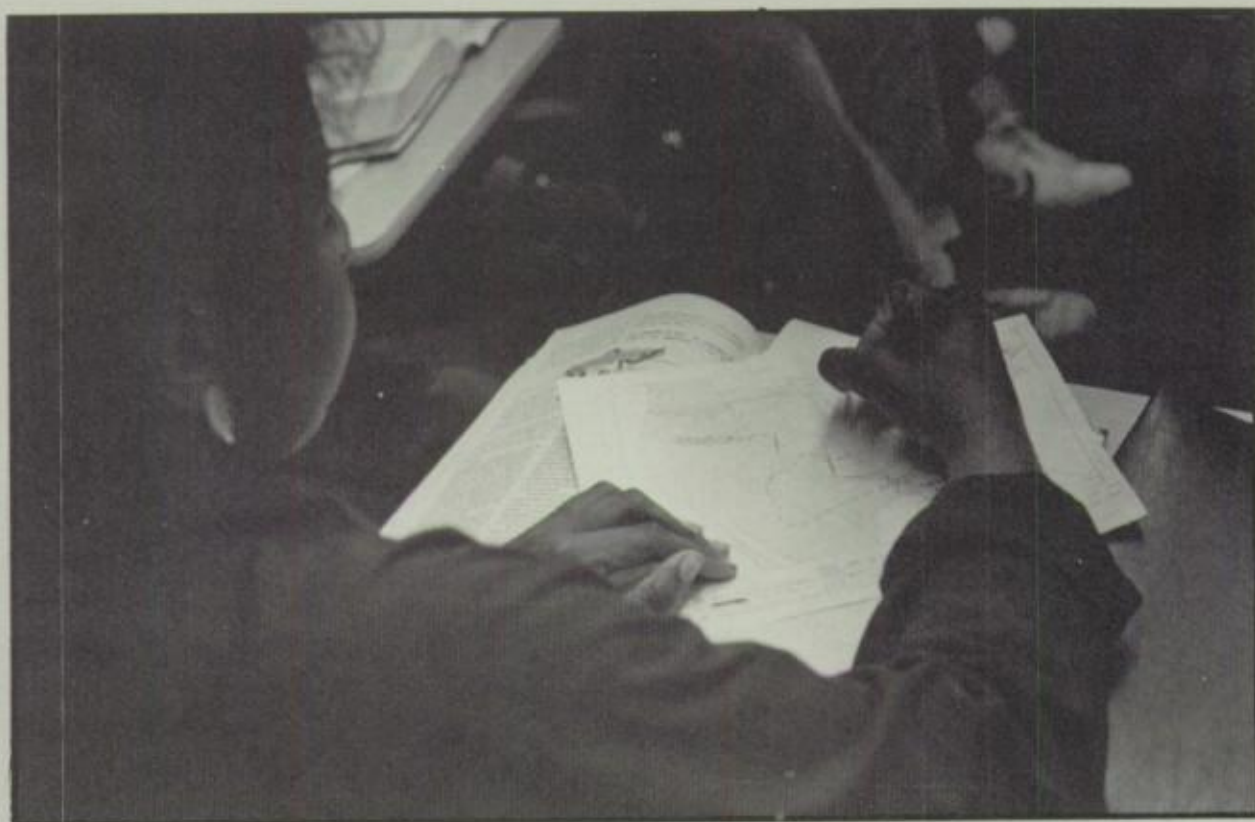

The Social Studies Club brought a little international flavor into the school by using "The World Is My Oyster," as their theme. Some students painted international flags and different flags throughout U.S. history in the hallways.

The club also had sessions called the Polish experience and the Jewish experience with guest speakers and ethnic foods, along with talks from foreign exchange students Allison Abraham and Erica Diez.

The students also participated in the Oktoberfest by giving tours of the Gruenwald home.

We all have those days! A day when you think it will never end. Mrs. Allen has that same feeling while trying to teach U.S. History.

History isn't all dates ... it's maps too. Carol Hyatt adds a little color to her map before handing it in, hoping to get a good grade.

Taking their act on the road: French students go big time.

Everyone wanted to be a star and fourth year French students were no exception. They decided to get into the act by making their own rendition of "Sleeping Beauty." They went into each others' homes during first hour and made a slide presentation about the process of "getting up in the morning."

Third year students also wanted to get into the act . . . of teaching. Mrs. Hodson's class went to Forest Hills, Greenbriar, and Robinson elementary schools every Friday for six weeks to teach students how to speak French.

Gerard Lombardi, a French cultural ambassador, enlightened the French classes on the different foods, music, fashions, and the history of France.

French Club also had their annual Halloween-initiation party at Lori Harrison's lodge. They memorized the story of the Fleur de Lys, and if they could not recite it, they had to pay a quarter.

If you thought learning was a task, what about teaching? Anne Kolbert takes a crack at teaching French to fifth graders at Forest Hills Elementary.

Spanish initiates find rare way to spend Tuesday night

Sticking a hand in greasy rubber worms, getting an egg facial and a soda and vinegar shampoo, being bombarded with shaving cream balloons, and pulling moldy brownies out of toilet water was not anyone's idea of how to spend a Tuesday evening.

First year Spanish students had to go through these phases blindfolded at Harrison's lodge in order to obtain membership in Spanish Club. There was also a hairy leg contest for the girls who dressed up as grannies and a beauty contest for the guys who came as ladies of the evening. The club also had their annual dinner at Chi-Chi's.

Despite the fun activities, the students also had obligations to fulfill in the classroom. There were four skills of language learning: listening, speaking, reading, and writing in Spanish. The students also studied the various aspects of hispanic culture. Mrs. Voorhis summed it up when she stated, "I am always searching for different techniques to help the students arrive at the level of proficiency that is needed to prepare them for college."

Mexican foreign exchange student Ericka Diez and fourth year Spanish students share cultural ideas using sombreros, serapes, and bull fighting techniques.

Finding out that skipping Spanish Club initiation was not a good idea, Greg Scott and Fred Dietzen are forced to put on 10 items of clothes blindfolded.

Latin students of Anderson say "Est melius in Latina!"

Slurp, slurp, slobber, slurp! Where in the world were all the gross noises coming from? It had to be room 310, of course, the sucker-selling headquarters.

Latin students did more than just sit around eating lollipops. With the help of Miss Nancy Durr, the kids had pig roasts, made buttons, sold over 9,600 suckers, and sponsored a skating party with the other foreign language clubs in addition to learning their daily lessons.

Three students: Tony Coleson, Mimi Fedor, and Echo Swinford attended a Latin Workshop held at Indiana University during the summer. "It was really great to meet people to whom you could speak Latin and have them understand you!" stated Mimi.

Miss Durr had only one thing to add to that — "Est melius in Latina!" — (It's better in Latin!)

Art students put new life into Anderson High's walls

Yes, believe it or not, Pac-Man and many other characters lived on the walls of Anderson High School. As students rushed through the halls on their way to class, they were stared down by Garfield daring some foolhardy soul to just try and steal his pan of lasagna. Lotsa Luck was there, too, guarding his "Indian Territory," along with Sarge, Beetle Bailey, and a host of others.

"We wanted to add some color to the walls," stated Mr. Hank Case, who supervised the painting. "When Anderson was remodeled in 1980, almost all of the murals were covered up. So, we painted our own on the space that was left."

Art Club, under the direction of Mr. Thomas Jackson, participated in many activities, including bake sales, field trips, parties, and the annual excursion to Paramount Pizza Palace in Indianapolis.

How about that? Lotsa Luck is right where he belongs . . . in the halls guarding the "Indian Territory." of course!

The all new high school almanac — a students guide to slang

AIRHEAD — space cadet
AWESOME — excellent, like beating Highland in Sectional is just too awesome.

BEEFCAKE — hunk

BOGUS — like, megaphoney

BOOK — hurry, like at 7:25 you've really got to book to school

BORING — like, totally puts me to sleep

BUF — short for megabuff

BUMMER — oh darn, like the Hut doesn't have buffet anymore — what a bummer!

BURNT OUT — you do it so much you're sick of it, I'm burnt out on homework (and school)

CHILL OUT — like calm down, don't act so Joanie

CRANK — all purpose word; moms are cranks, you crank up the stereo, crank yourself to school; "Shake" cranks it up too!

DEFINITELY — like, fer sure
EDGE — if somebody really bugs you, he gives you an edge (if he really, REALLY bugs you, it's a cliff)

FER SURE — of course, duh!

FRIED — like, my mind is fried, I can't believe it — the trash left in the living room after Friday night really fries your mind

GRODY — mega-gross, like bad breath

HEY DUDE — when you want to capture someones attention, like; Hey dude, let's party!

I'M EXCITED — something to say when you're bored, another all-purpose word

JEL — jello-brain, fer sure

JOANIE — old and out of style
MEGA — a whole bunch

MEGABUFF — super beefcake of a guy, like Tom Sellek or E.T.
MELLOW OUT — kind of like cool out, calm down

"I love teaching Business Law because it's relevant to each student's life. I really feel that it has value for each kid. It's about things kids need to know and think about."
Mrs. Plummer

Messing up in an accounting workbook can be slightly frustrating, but with the help of Mr. Hilligoss, Donna Dickerson finds out just how to correct it.

Writing notes, instead of taking them, is a favorite pastime of some students. Oseleta Perry was caught by a watchful photographer.

"I saw you take it!" accuses Lata Rickman during a mock trial in Business Law. Brian Behrens, the accused, patiently awaits his turn to yell back!

For business bodies: A key to typewriters is learning.

Voice writers? IBM Key punch? Did this sound like something from the advanced world of computers? Well these were just a pinch of the things used by students to better themselves in the world of business.

The Business Department, headed by Mr. Wendell Hilligoss, offered 26 courses ranging from general business to salesmanship or office practice, including business English and math.

In such classes as accounting and typing, students used office assimilations to help them understand how offices were run. Mock trials were conducted in business law to show of the variety of activities governed by law.

Even though the Business Department was different from the co-op programs, they still helped place several students in part time jobs when employers called the department. Two special education classes were also offered while geared to the abilities of the learning disabled.

So Voice writers, IBM Key punches, and field trips were just a part of the learning techniques in the Business Department.

If at first you don't succeed . . . crumble it up and throw it on your desk! And that's just what Dwight Sawyer did every time he made a mistake in typing. Try it again, Dwight.

"Is this some kind of space language?" Chalana Carter demonstrates how to take dictation in shorthand during Mrs. Funk's shorthand class.

Mathematically speaking from basic algebra to calculus

Atari at AHS? Hardly. Actually it was just the probability and statistic students "playing" on the computers.

Computer programming was a new aspect of probability and statistics which gave the students the opportunity to learn more about the "video wizards."

To accomodate the new equipment which consisted of seventeen micro-computers, five printers, one plotter-printer, and six "floppy disc drives", moderate remodeling of room 121 was done. A door between room 121 and room 131 was added, and a window was installed between room 121 and the math office. "Probability and statistics is a somewhat independent class, and this way we can keep an eye on the students!" commented

Mr. G. Ross Buckman, who teaches Probability and Statistics.

Mr. Buckman also said that he was very happy with the program built here. He added, "We looked at different facilities all around the state and utilized what we felt were the best characteristics of each."

Computer programming was a big hit at AHS. As one student put it, "Computers are great! For instance, when someone asks you how many languages you speak, you can say, 'Three — English, French, and BASIC!'"

Miss Nancy Kitt and John Scott prove that two heads are sometimes better than one when it comes to trigonometry . . . Hey, John, watch out for ink poisoning!

Mary Dougherty enters her computer program as part of her assignment in probability and statistics.

"If you take calculus in high school, it will make college that much easier. That way, if you have one easier course, you'll have time for other things!"

Sleeping on the job (or, rather, in the class) doesn't seem to go over well at AHS, as Terry Wood is about to find out.

"Basically, the goal of the Science Department, in a general way, was to make students aware of their environment and to place science in their everyday lives. We also tried to provide technical training for those students really interested in science careers."

Mr. Worden

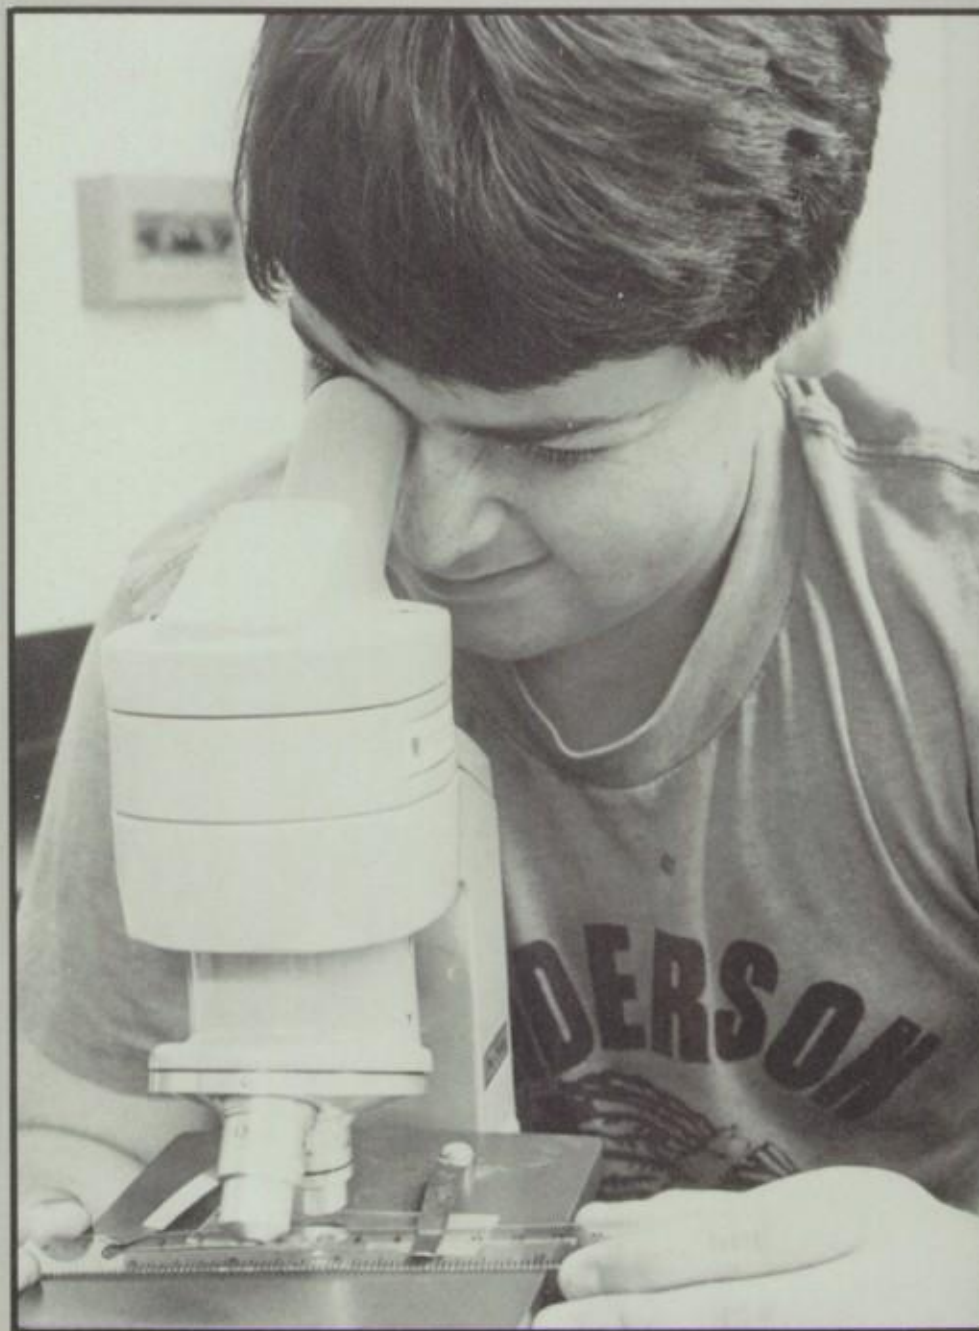

"Ouch, that hurts!" expresses Lisa Hobbs as Mr. Worden pricks her finger with a needle in order to help her find her blood type.

The importance of science is one easy (hard) lesson

Science? Important? Sure it was. Most students took science only to prepare themselves for college, but after getting involved with labs, dissections, and the study of nature students saw a whole new side of science.

The Science Department offered classes ranging from Basic Biology to Honors Physics.

Freshmen found themselves listening to lectures and looking at small organisms on the microscope while Zoology students ventured into the dissection of larger animals such as fetal pigs.

Mrs. Fran Carricos, who was new to the Anderson High School staff, guided her students through the scientific notation and oxidation numbers.

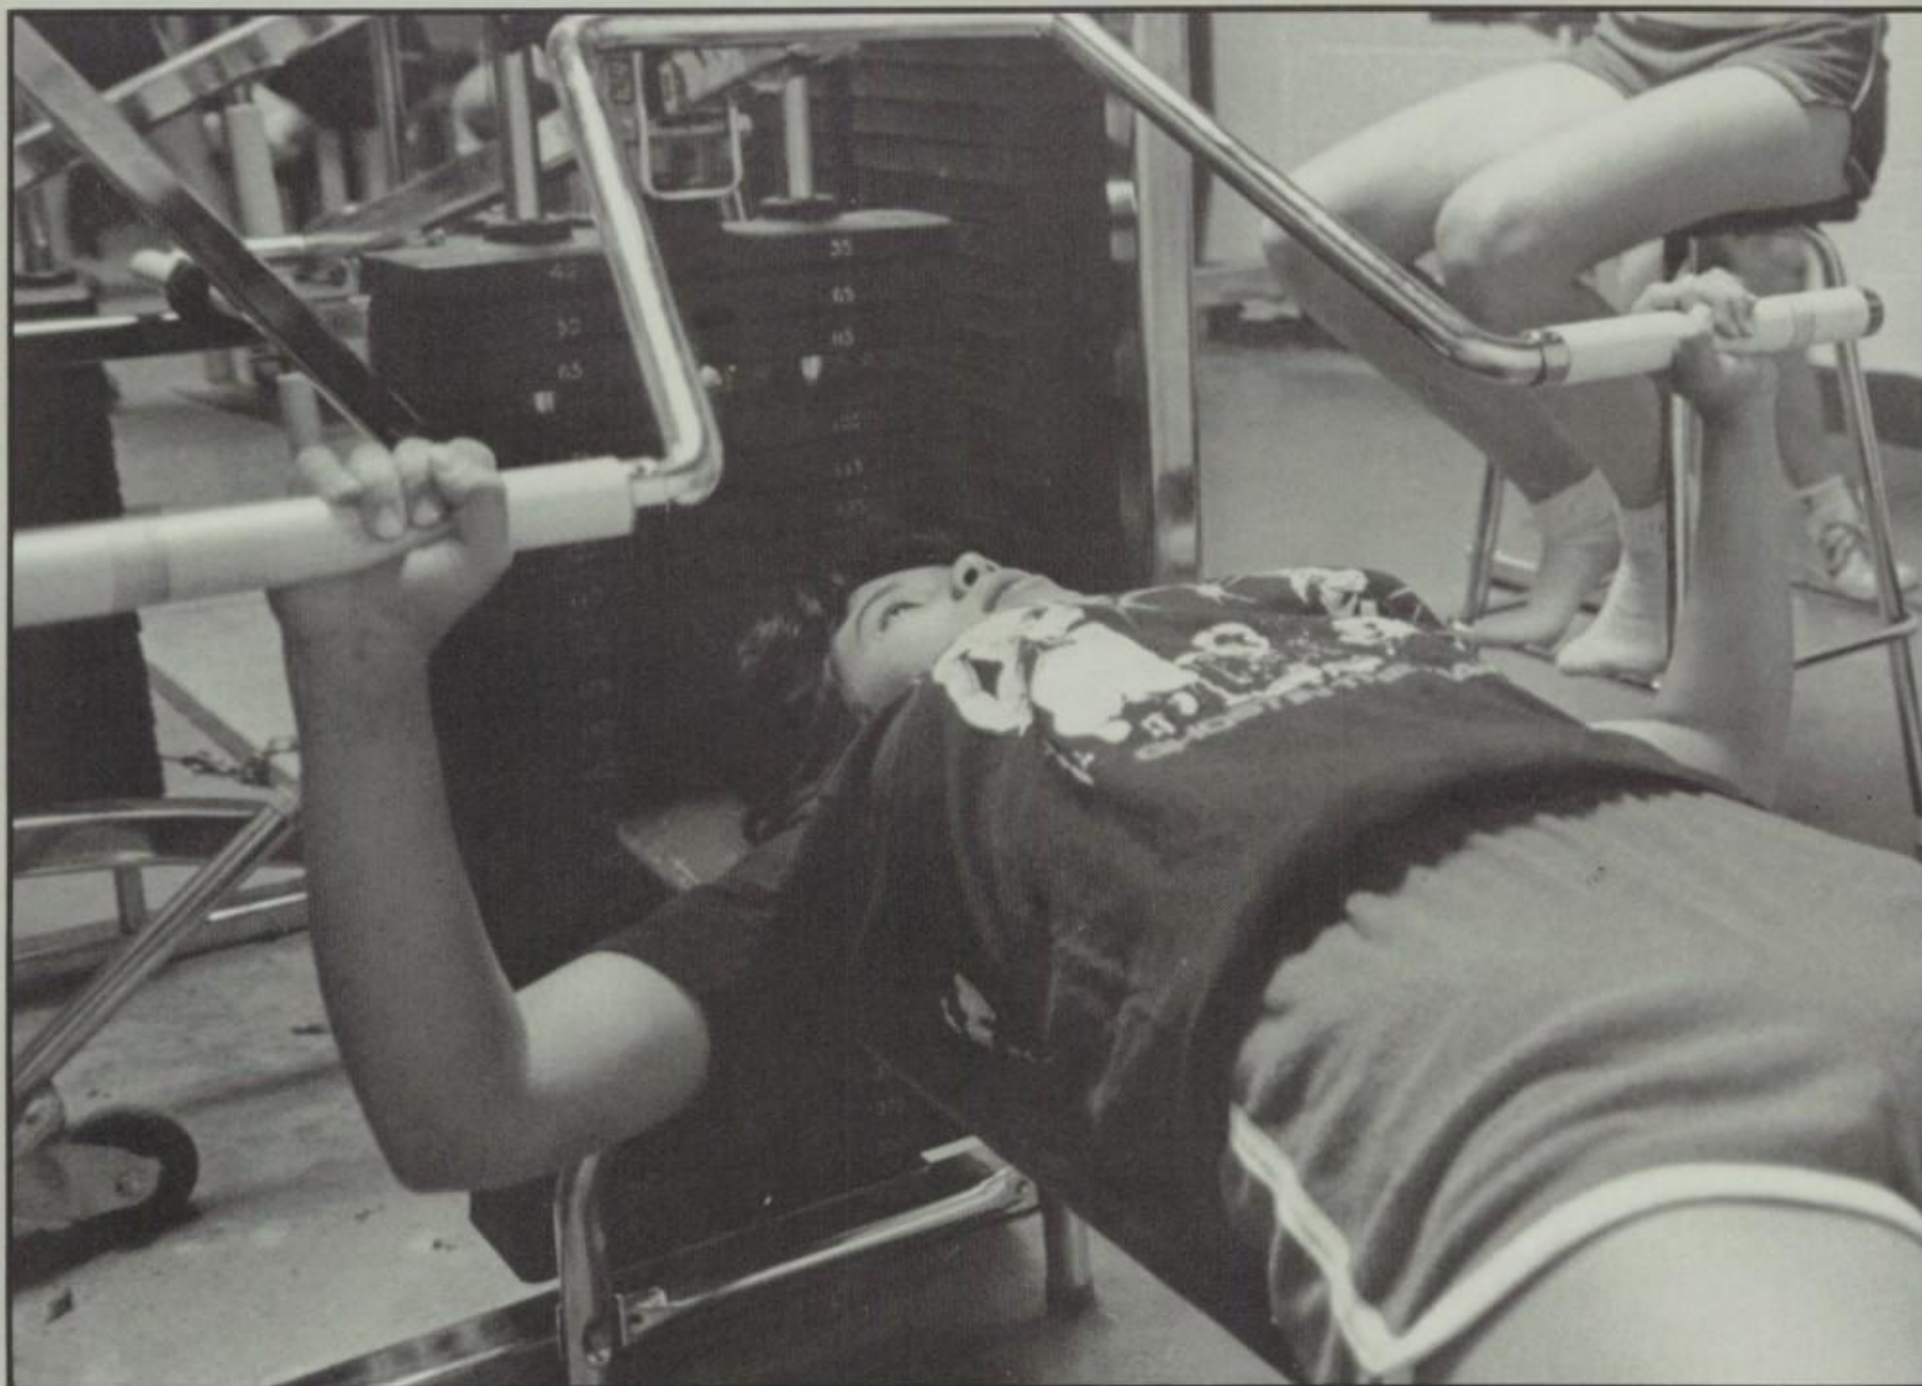

Physic students studied energy and matter by proving several theories. Working with the laser beam was a favorite among Physics students.

What a talented man that Victor!! Using all of his concentration, Victor Bertl listens intently as Mrs. Carrico explains how to program the TRS-80 model computer.

How would you like to date this guy? Susie Bailey finds out exactly why she wouldn't want to in Zoology. The looks and odor of the fetal pig is enough to turn any girl off.

New class s-t-r-e-t-c-h-e-s students mentally and physically

Ever get tired of sitting in a dull classroom? Then "Exercise in Anatomy" was the class for you.

"Exercise" was added to AHS's curriculum in 1982, when Mr. Rick Eads pointed out how out of shape most students were. Mr. Eads claimed that "only a handful of kids in this school are in good condition."

The students were graded on classroom grades and participation and either on their physical improvement or their output at the end of the semester.

"For the most part," Mr. Eads stated, "girls don't like to lift weights. They tend to think it will make them muscle-bound, which it won't. This type of class will help prove that to them."

Another beneficial class for students was Driver's Education. In Driver's Ed., students viewed films of the "rights and wrongs of the road," simulated driving techniques, and received actual driving experience. The IPDE (Identify, Predict, Decide, and Execute) process was also a big part of this class. The students learned how to identify possible problem situations, predict what the other driver would do, decide on their proper reaction, and execute those "difficult maneuvers."

When asked if she'd remember her driver's ed. lessons after leaving the class, sophomore Angie Stanley commented, "I sure will . . . I think I've heard 'Hand over hand' in my sleep practically every night for a week!"

"One, and two, and three, and . . ." Lori Harrison counts to herself as she completes 20 seconds worth of hyper-extensions as a part of the "exercise in anatomy" course.

Mary Parrish "exercises her anatomy" in an effort to do better on her next output test.

"The car was a little strange at first, trying to find all the instruments. But now I can't wait to get my license!"

Tonya Freeman.

"Oops, let me try it again." Parking is one of the things to learn in driver's ed. class, and this student parked just a tiny bit crooked.

Walking blind isn't as easy as it looks ... Ricky Smith finds this out as Billy Norris leads him about the school.

"The Career Resource Center is really helpful. It helps you choose a career, or get a college degree if you want to go to college. I think every student should try it at least once. I'm glad it's here or I would be lost!"

Howard
Watson

Boy, does that look good! expresses Mrs. Janet Brandon as George Minton serves his guest some delicious roast at cooking class' annual guest dinner.

Reading the instructions and measuring the pattern is just the first step of making a skirt in Mrs. Harrell's sewing class as Christina Poe soon finds out.

Career Resource Center and Home Ec. are really cooking

The Home Economics Department prepared students for all phases of life. In Mrs. Donita Sheet's food classes students were able to use their artistic talents, while Mrs. Harrell's clothing classes ventured into the wonderful world of sewing.

Family living and child development classes prepared students for life after high school. Mrs. Janet Brandon head of the Home Economics department, stated, "Everyone should have taken child development and family living classes because being a mother or father is a big responsibility and needs preparation".

The Future Homemakers of America was a club that helped prepare young women for homemaking and Home Economic related careers.

The Career Resource Center also helped students prepare for their futures. Students explored job opportunities by watching filmstrips, listening to guest speakers, going on field trips, and job shadowing. Mrs. Wishard stated, "parents expressed their appreciation of the center because it helped their child figure out what they wanted to go into." The Career Resource Center also enabled students to explore career opportunities they never thought existed.

"Can I really do that?!" exclaims Melvin Jones when Mrs. Wishard, Career Resource Center director, shows him all the opportunities offered in certain areas.

"Check out those shades!" Kenneth Parker displays his talent by cutting a carefully constructed blockmobile on the band saw. All students are required to wear safety glasses while operating any machine.

"One more letter, coming up!" is what Alvin Willson replies while filing a plastic letter in Plastic class. That sure would make an awful big alphabet soup!

Industrial arts provides interest and imagination

Being the only girl in the class could have been a very strange feeling, but it was a feeling some students experienced in the Industrial Arts Department. The department, headed by Mr. Paul Clay, offered Aerospace, Graphic Arts, and other classes to boys as well as girls.

In a class such as Aerospace, students learned how to construct airplanes which included making a model of one, and read airplane instruments and maps. The students even took field trips to airfields where they could view the planes inside and out.

Other classes too, such as Woods, constructed blockmobiles. Metal classes worked on changing metal from solid to liquid back to solid again. Welding, Drafting, and Plastics gave students a chance to show off their creativity and utilize their hobby making skills.

"It helps them to understand blueprints, drawings, and ad pictures. They can sit down and design their own blueprints for contractors to build a house. Plus it also prepares them for a full time occupation in industry," commented Mr. Clay on the drafting classes and other classes in the department.

Mr. Alexander patiently explains what is wrong with a machine to Shannon Antoine. Shannon is the first girl to be in Mr. Alexander's Metals class.

"I am the only girl in the class and it doesn't really bother me 'cause it's just like any other class. You're kept so busy in the class you don't have time to worry about who else is in there with you. It's my favorite class because it's very competitive and I enjoy drawing."

Rise and shine!

Panic stricken, you glanced at your alarm and with a defeated feeling you realized it was going to be another one of those mornings. You never knew if your alarm would sound, therefore getting up on time was an unpredictable matter. Instead of picking out your clothes in advance, you waited until that morning. That was when you realized that laundry day was tomorrow. So after the treachery of finding something to wear, you realized you had five minutes until the bus came. With coat on and books in your hand, you walked to the front door and then it hit you . . . it was Saturday.

Getting up late on school mornings is a real hassle. Many students, like Lora Bailey, prefer to put their alarms on snooze and get a few more minutes of shut eye.

DECA and OWE co-op students taste the "real" world

Who ever said that high school students were too young to get out into the real world? It certainly was not Mr. Al Inhat, Occupational Work Experience sponsor. "Most of my students don't know what they want to do career wise, but the money, credits, and job experience are all needed so that they can sustain themselves at home and at school." stated Mr. Inhat.

OWE sold candy bars and held a banquet at the end of the year for the students and their parents.

Distributive Education Club of America offered jobs in retailing, sales and stockkeeping. The purpose of DECA, according to sponsor Mr. Dennis Montgomery, was to "provide opportunities for students to explore careers and to see whether or not that job is for them."

Throughout the year, DECA sold Anderson Indian sweaters with embroidered Indian heads in order to buy a computer for their classroom.

Help wanted: only those people with experience can apply

Where could you get that stuff called experience? CHO and COE offered solutions to that dilemma.

Under the supervision of Mr. Jack Macy, COE students had the opportunity to work in office situations. "We don't 'get' jobs for anyone," stated Mr. Macy. "We arrange for the students to speak with an employer, and the rest is up to them."

Kris Carlisle gains first rate experience while on the job training at Citizens Insurance.

Cooperative Health Organization students had a chance to work in a field related to health. Mrs. Lamey's students worked at jobs as dental and medical supply assistants, physical therapy apprentices, and a number of other positions.

"It really gives the students an inside look at the real world," Mrs. Lamey concluded.

Making the best better

What started in 1856 would remain true for years to come — proud people bearing one thing in common; tradition. We demanded nothing less than excellence in the classroom and expected nothing short of winning in athletics . . . tradition meant pride.

Pride meant a band that finished first at the Darke County Fair in Ohio, (along with capturing six out of seven captions) and third at the State Fair.

Pride meant an 8-2 football team and a basketball team feared throughout the state.

Pride meant people. After 127 years one thing remained the same — we were the best around. From the ecstatic faces found in the Wigwam to the jovial tones echoing throughout the halls, we were still the ones making the best better.

Indians have it. Cheerleaders have it, band people have it. What is it? Enthusiasm and pride. It shines through every Indian's face just like one Indianette's, Cathé Nelson.

The cold may have frightened some of the people away from the game but not the dedicated, proud Indian fans Shelly Wykoff, Mark Bish, Jill Murray and Dana Gowen.

A disease only Graduation can cure

Another year . . . another step up. Finally it was our turn to be SENIORS. Even though at times it was difficult to accept that this was our last time through AHS, we felt a rapture of relief and a surge of joy that came with the "Senior" title. After 12 years of dedicated studying, it was time for a change. Whether it was off to college for another four years, or off to work, a new way of life was indeed in store for all of us. Uncertain feelings about our life and our future entered all of our minds at one time or the other. Basketball games, parties and "IU weekends" kept us busy enjoying life and forgetting worries (and homework)!

Our class of '83 reflected back on times shared: the homecoming floats, Senior Executive Council, Junior Prom, fitting caps and gowns, and finally receiving that long awaited diploma. There wasn't a soul around that could deny us our involvement, our pride or our fun.

Together we struggled through government class and froze at football games. It was our class, our turn — we had everything to be proud of, everything to remember.

Ahh . . . graduation! Four long years went into the making of that cherished diploma that we worked so hard for.

Goofing off in class (in this case Mrs. Bernard's government class) is one of the attractive advantages of being a senior.

What would we do without Mr. Nelson and "Ms. Shoe"? Thank you for guiding us through our high school years.

A senior at last! At convos seniors do it better, just ask Lynne Nelson and Karen Gahimer.

Through the eyes of a senior!

As seniors we stayed out late, eased up on homework and set the standards for the "underclassmen" to follow.

For three years we longed for prom, Section A, lighter class loads, later curfews, senior pictures, driving to school every day, selecting a college, the yearbook, graduation parties and RE-SPECT.

However, becoming a senior brought with it many responsibilities. More was expected of us because we were the leaders. We suddenly gained insight into the uncertainty of the real world, and that was the newest and most startling revelation.

Randy Harrison always sees life the senior way.

A minor inconvenience

Kelly Gregory could have been described as a very strong-willed, independent person. Five years ago she lost her left leg to cancer but that didn't stop her. Kelly was still very involved in activities. She belonged to DECA and held a job at K-Mart all through her senior year. Occasionally she rode horses, went swimming and rode her ten-speed bike.

Kelly did not consider herself handicapped, it was just a "minor inconvenience." She did consider herself spoiled. "I am a spoiled brat, and I know it. But I love it."

Riding her bike in the alley behind her house, Kelly Gregory finds how relaxing a bike ride can be.

After a tedious week of getting up with the sun, and long evenings spent studying, we knew it was time for

those nights on Broadway

"Here we are on a road full of strangers, we can't stay away, ... Blamin' it all on those nights on Broadway."

We asked ourselves, is it Friday yet? Finally relief was in sight ... no more crawling out of bed at the crack of dawn and no more endless nights spent cramming for tests, that was until Monday arrived.

Yes, it was Friday and to some students that meant a relaxing evening of cruising up and down Broadway or parking and gossiping with new and old friends. Lounging on jacked-up cars, passing drinks, and flirting with the guys were all part of the Friday night ritual.

Cruising on "The Way" proposed a noteworthy solution to the boredom. Plus, their new found entertainment offered a nice alternative to increasingly expensive movies and increasingly lean pizzas.

With friends, drinks and transportation who can ask for a better way to spend Friday night? If the gas tank is full or even if it is empty, students find the action on Broadway enjoyable.

Let your fingers do the studying — it's a snap!

TELEPHONE HOMEWORK

Brrring . . . brrring . . . "Hello? Hi, Help!!! This homework is hard; I don't understand it!" This was a typical phrase used by nearly all Anderson High School students at one time or another.

"Telephone homework" became a necessity for most of the student body. In fact, many of the students simply could not work without their nightly "tutoring". Besides, it was a lot less expensive than $8.00 an hour for professional tutoring.

Sure, homework over the telephone was a lot more fun, but it was also a lot more time consuming . . . "Oops, gotta go! There goes Mom again, and we've only been on for three hours . . . bye." Click. Bzzzz . . .

"Okay, I don't understand this problem. It says to find the value of each function to four significant digits for cot. 1.490." Mike McCarty finds that homework over the telephone is the only way to go.

T<sub>oo</sub> Y<sub>oung</sub> to know how but O<sub>ld</sub> E<sub>nough</sub> to know better

"The Sophomore Class is very prepared, efficient, excited, and unified," said Mrs. Barbara Hardesty, who along with Mrs. Martha Wilson, was chosen to sponsor the sophomore class.

The class of '85 had many new things ahead of them — things that they had never experienced as freshmen. Like participating in the Homecoming Parade, serving at prom, and voting on their own class officers.

Still, many felt as if they were in limbo. As Pam Brown said, "The freshmen are babies, the juniors have prom, and the seniors are the upper class — we're just the middle child." But, as Laura Copeland pointed out, "We're not getting stepped on anymore. Then again, we're not stepping on anyone else, either!"

As Close to perfect as swimming can get

Debbie Daniel stands tall as she is awarded a first place medal in the State Meet.

Debbie Daniel, an AHS sophomore, was honored by being chosen to compete for the United States in the 1982 World Junior Championships which was held in the U.S.S.R.

Although the U.S. swimmers lost to the Russians, Debbie fared well with personal bests good for a second place in the 100 meter free-style and a fifth in the 200.

For her efforts, Debbie received a bouquet of flowers and a Russian inscribed certificate.

When asked what she thought of Russia, Debbie replied, "I think my trip toughened me up. Americans don't realize how good they have it!"

Can your parents fit in your shoes?

Walk in our Moccasins Day

"Walk in our Moccasins Day" — a day in which parents took their children's places in school.

Yes, on November 17, 1982, some 400 parents actually tried to fit into their children's shoes." This "fitting" was a lot more difficult to do than most mothers and fathers thought. After all, they still had to go through those dreadful Physical Education classes, the boring lectures, and the hand-cramping notes.

Some had better luck than others; quite a few got lost. Others could not open the lockers, and most could not seem to make it to class in the five minutes allowed.

In spite of all the happenings, most of the parents seemed to enjoy themselves at AHS's sixth "Walk in your Moccasins Day." They even survived the day without having a mental break down.

Even with all these calamities most of the participants still agreed that they had fun. But they all agreed on one thing — that life at Anderson High School was not always easy. As one parent put it, "Now I know why my daughter comes home exhausted at the end of the day!"

Lockers easy to open? This is not always true, as one mom shows, while participating in Anderson High School's sixth 'Walk in our Moccasins Day'.

Life, liberty and the delight of becoming a Freshman

"Where in the *&c%#$#@(*??%$# did all these people come from?" This was one of the most popular phrases uttered by nearly every freshman at one time or another on their introduction to Anderson High School.

Life in high school was totally different than that at North Side, as the freshmen soon found out. With an hour for lunch, six classes, and extra not-so-desirable responsibilities, the freshmen were expected to make important decisions and stick to them.

Decision making wasn't easy. Freshman Theresa Kane pointed out, "We still have three years to go and here we are expected to make decisions for after graduation."

The freshmen learned many new tricks on how to survive at AHS. One was never to ask an upper classman for directions. Another was to yell loudly at pep-sessions, or they would automatically be labeled as spiritless and at high school that was as bad as a four letter word. After the first pep-session they learned quickly ... as one group of anonymous freshmen responded to the beat of "Freshmen, freshmen what do you say? "We are the class going all the way!" Maybe so maybe not, one thing was for sure though ... they had three years to practice.

The "I hate Monday Blues"

"I HATE MONDAYS!! First I get up late, then I forget my homework, I drop my books, and now I've missed the bus!"

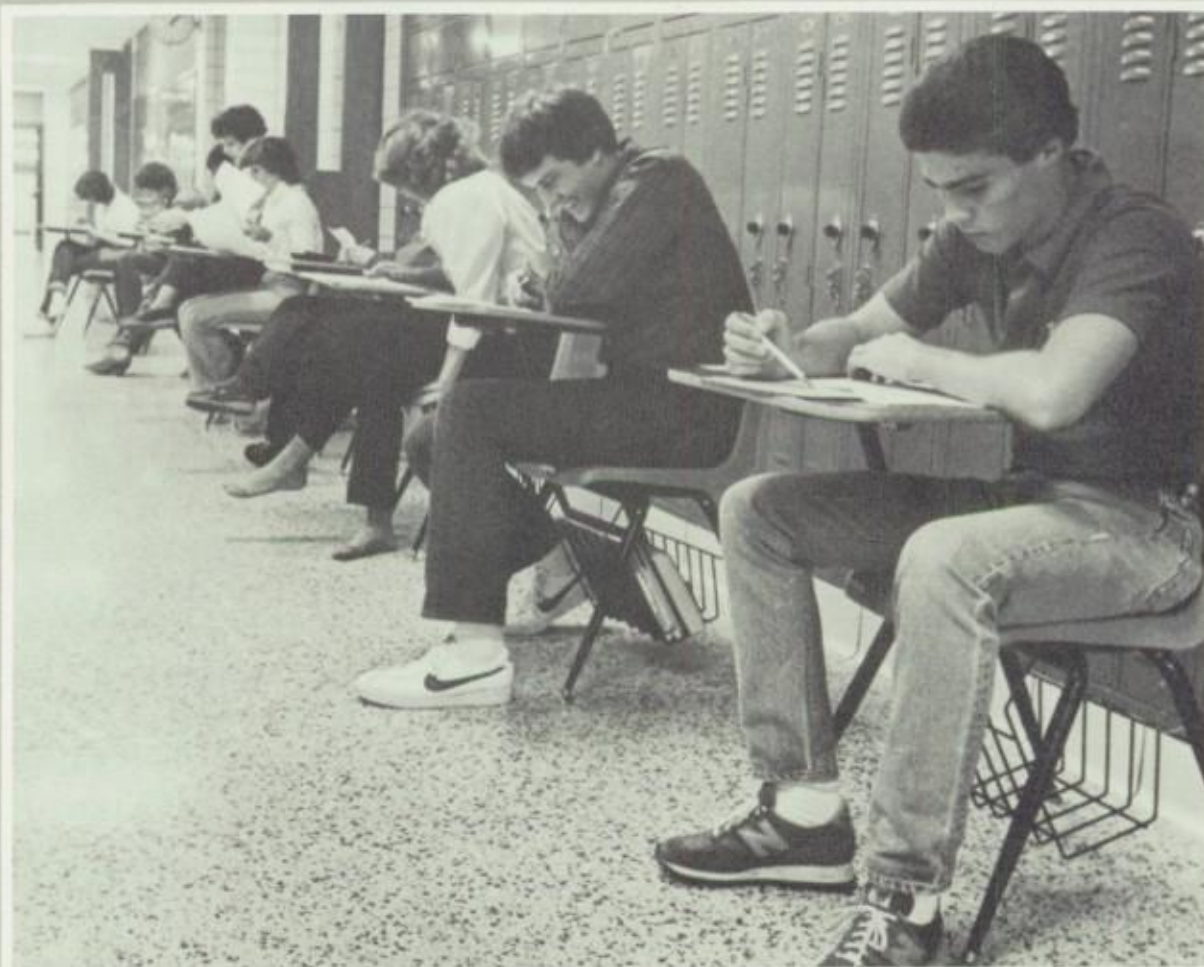

It never failed . . . Mondays were pure torture, and if you caught the "Monday Morning Blues," that just made it all the worse. In fact, Murphy's Law, "If something can go wrong . . . it probably will — was practically renamed "The Monday's Law" at AHS.

So, rather than facing those dreaded Mondays, the students at Anderson High School voted to incorporate only Fridays! A whole week of Fridays would have insured parties every night, no weekend homework, late nights, and later mornings for all.

Most of the students agreed that all Fridays would be really great — but only for a while.

"After all," said one, "What would we do without Saturday nights?"

Mondays easy? These students didn't think so, especially since they had to take a make-up test!

If the "ring" fits, wear it!

"Don't be left out; order your class ring now!" read the poster.

The ordering of class rings was a major event for freshmen. They were ecstatic about purchasing their own personalized Class of '86 rings. After consulting with parents and friends regarding cost and stone colors, freshmen eagerly placed their orders and waited. . . . Soon they would feel like real Indians!

When the rings finally arrived, the halls echoed with chants of "Oh, let me see your ring!"

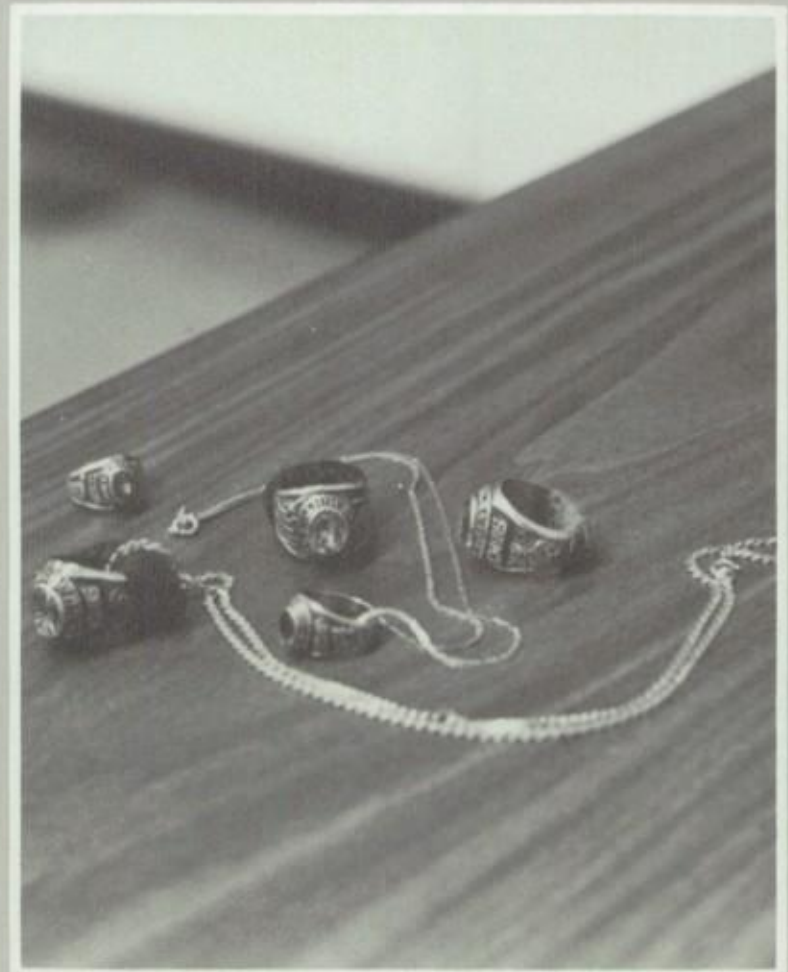

There were various ways to wear the rings. Some wore their boyfriend's ring with the aid of yarn to make for a snug fit, or the ring was worn on a chain as a necklace.

A class ring . . . a tradition, a lasting memory, a beginning to an end.

Going steady is nice, but wearing your beau's class ring to legalize the commitment is the ultimate!

An eye catching display reveals the different styles of class rings there are to choose from. Which one fits your personality?

More homework, more responsibility . . . and they thought high school would be fun! These freshmen learn that sometimes it can be all work and no play.

How does it feel to be an Indian

A new beginning

Imagine yourself alone in an unfamiliar building with everyone else seeming to know his way around, what would you do? The same thing that the freshmen class did on their first day at AHS . . . PANIC!

Aw, it wasn't so bad, even though the high school was "huge" it offered some definite advantages (contrary to that of . . . junior high). Students finally gained independence and freedom as they filled out their own class schedules and flocked to McDonalds during open lunch hours.

High school presented freshmen with many new challenges. And just as Angie Gayle said, "High school makes you feel older in the idea that you're out of junior high, then again, you're a freshman. And when you consider that you have three more grades to go that's not so good!"

Real Teachers

..... Teacher ..... Trainer ..... Tutor .....

Faculty row: Real teachers never lose their class

"Real teachers don't eat quiche." This statement best summarized the curiosities shared by the students pertaining to a teacher's discipline and morals. The following statements indicate the students' main ideas and beliefs about real teachers.

Real teachers aren't late to school (exception; "Ms. Shoe").

Real teachers drink TAB.

Real teachers give extra credit.

Real teachers don't smell.

Real teachers eat cafeteria food.

Real teachers don't sell "elevator passes"

Real teachers don't leave school right at 2:25.

Real teachers don't run out of gas.

Real teachers don't chew gum in class.

Real teachers know the school song (or the school colors, anyway).

Real nice teachers don't assign weekend homework.

Real teachers don't know what a "Donkey Kong" is.

It was evident that teachers were somewhat stereotyped by their students. Like students, they shared the same desire for entertainment. But they also dealt with the same hazards as did everyone else (they did more than just assign homework).

Real teachers graded those unbearable tests, checked those endless research papers and struggled through students' hand writing (?). In other words, a real teacher's job was never done!

All work and no play? No way! Once a year these "real" female teachers relax by taking a day off from homework while cruising to Indianapolis to enjoy a fabulous dinner and a night on the town.

Summer vacation is a break earned by both the students and the teachers. Adding a valuable dimension to the First Nazarene Church's softball team is Bob Kearns as he warms up his fast pitch.

Everything you wanted to know about

Students' morals

Never judge teachers by their covers! Behind those thoughtful faces seen everyday by hundreds of students hidoodles of creativity and adventurous personalities.

Here are some extremely interesting activities that the faculty members enjoyed:

Reading was the overall winner. Other top notch choices were: Sports, sewing, fishing, traveling, and crafts. However, a few fascinating hobbies deserved attention. Dr. Jack Nicholson collected art objects and historical objects from foreign lands.

Mrs. Judy Jacobs had an amazing collection of Hummel figurines. But to sum it up, Mr. P.T. Morgan told us that he thoroughly enjoyed just "sitting in the mall and smoking", or "eating cough drops"! When we polled the teachers, we asked them, "How have students changed for the better? For the worse?" The outcome was a wide variety of answers.

Mrs. Maxine Bridges and Mrs. Toni Shoemaker possess a lot of "high school spirit" in "Vanities."

Hobbies

The majority of teachers felt that students were now more socially aware.

Teachers

"Every generation is unique and so is every individual."

What a charmer! Mrs. Hodson's son, David, is by far her favorite hobby.

Marilyn Lamey — Cooperative Ed., C.H.O. David G. Legge — Industrial Arts. John Longnaker — Science, Faculty — Parent Advisory Council. Sandra K. Lowry — Language Arts, Ass. Volleyball Coach. Jack Macy — Cooperative Office Ed. Head. Barbara Mebane — Language Arts, Yearbook Advisor.

Harold M. Miller — Physical Ed. Dept. Head, Curriculum Committee, Hoosier Boys' and Girls' State. George M. Mock — Industrial Art Arts. Dennis Montgomery — Cooperative Ed., Pep Sessions, DECA, Bookstore Sponsor. P.T. Morgan — Health, Baccalaureate and Commencement, Pep Sessions, Junior Class Sponsor, Assistant Football Coach, Head Reserve Football Coach. Susan Mullarkey — Language Arts, National Honor Society.

Glen Nelson — Science, Baccalaureate and Commencement Speakers, Pep Sessions Senior Awards, Senior Class Sponsor, Freshman Football Coach. Charles M. Newberry — Counselor. Jack B. Nicholson — Social Studies Dept. Head, Honors Day Sponsor, Curriculum, Clubs, Social Studies Club. Larry L. Pearson — Math, Faculty — Parent Advisory Council, Pep Session Committee, ACS Computer Equip. Committee.

Thus, this is a difficult question. Kids are people learning to cope with the reality of their lives. Sometimes in frustration, they do dumb things, but so did their parents," stated Mrs. Kay Clark. Yet for the worse, the answers were mostly to the effect that "students have much less respect for adults and authority." They also frequently commented on the disturbance from the "vulgarity and four letter words" in the halls.

Music

Do teachers boogie? Well, as it turned out, many of them did . . . in their own way, boogie just may not have been the word for it. Classical music came out on top in the survey, yet country western (excluding "hillbilly") was not far behind. Soft rock and easy listening were also favorites. As far as radio stations, WXTZ, WHLN, and WENS, in that order, fell into the highest positions.

Striving for more, Mrs. Mullarkey takes ## her talents to B.S.U.

She believed in being "the best you can be." She was stepping out and hitting the books to earn a treasured doctorate degree. Mrs. Susan Mullarkey was going to make her goal come true.

Mrs. Mullarkey made the important decision to take a six month leave of absence from AHS. She took this extra time straight to Ball State University where she taught a freshman composition class and took four doctorate classes to obtain her degree.

She began working toward this admirable feat in the summer of 1978. She hoped to finish classes during the summer of 1983. Yet she would still have to write a 400 page dissertation about the challenge in secondary teaching.

Where did this lead her? Besides gaining personal satisfaction, Mrs. Mullarkey hoped to find a superior method of teaching literature.

Teaching English 104 at Ball State University, Mrs. Mullarkey works hard to earn her doctorate degree, and she is still capable of providing individual attention to her students.

35, 36, 37, only three (puff, puff) more to go! 38, 39, (heave) 40! The sit ups were done (whew)!

Believe it or not, teachers were people too! And one of the latest crazes was exercise.

Swimming and aerobics were two of the tactics used by the teachers to stay feeling alive and well. The facilities made it convenient for teachers to simply bring their gear and get into the action right after school. There were also teachers who took their energy to Full Court Raquetball Club to enjoy an adventurous game of racquetball.

The pool was used by teachers during the lunch hours to refresh and exercise their bodies. The Language Arts Office was also the site of regular workouts for a number of English teachers during the first half of the year. Exercise became quite enjoyable when it was done by choice and in the company of fellow teachers.

The voices of authority pull the strings

Supervising the seventh largest school district in Indiana was a job designed for a responsible person. After three years on the job, Superintendent Mr. Leonard W. Austin became more familiar and efficient with the requirements of his somewhat endless job.

Because of unstable economic conditions, one of his decisions was to cut back on extra curricular expenses.

Mr. Austin coordinated the entire school system with education in mind. To assist him with such tasks were Assistant Superintendents Mr. Robert Stinson and Dr. William O'Neal.

Superintendent Mr. Austin.

Secondary education was headed by Dr. O'Neal. He initiated improvements at particular school sites such as the Career Resource Center.

Mr. Stinson directed the area principals, supplied essentials for students, and handled the special education programs.

The school board put their ideas together to form and vote on different topics pertaining to the school systems. The school's secretaries worked efficiently with them as well as the staff at AHS.

What you learn after you know it all

Everyone knew that followers needed leaders; at AHS the Head Indian Chief was Mr. Horace Chadborne. The ten year veteran, in conjunction with conducting the school, inspired and guided the teaching staff of 104 and served as a personal counselor for the entire crew.

While Mr. Chadborne continued to supervise, his two "fantastic" assistants entertained their days with other tasks. Mr. Lennon Brown secured substitutes, and prepared and assisted with State and Federal Reports. Mr. James Sutton devoted his time to the curriculum development, grade reports, and the master schedule.

On down the hallway, in Mrs. Virginia Hurley's or Mr. Lanny Reger's office, rules were being enforced. The two deans strived to make tardies less desirable and attendance more popular.

Closely related to the deans was Security Officer Mr. Hughsten Broadnax. He encouraged security in the school and in the parking lots.

Scheduling meets and games, arranging for transportation and purchasing equipment required the time of the Athletic Director, Mr. Robert Belangee.

The real world of cooking and cleaning

For a small portion of the AHS staff, work did not end at 2:30. When the school seemed empty every evening, it was far from actually being deserted. The hardworking custodians were fulfilling their duties; one employee even had four legs! Chief was the shiny black dog, trained and loved by Loren Holloway, who kept the building a safe place to come to each morning. Often it was taken for granted that our halls were clean and that our bathrooms were "spic-and-span" every evening. But thanks to the faithful custodians, the building lived up to dignified expectations.

On the other side of the coin, there were the cooks who, aside from keeping all of the growling stomachs happy, managed the dirty work of running a kitchen. Each morning as classes began, the cooks embarked in preparing a lunch for the herds of starving students that would pour in at noon.

"Now this is the plan" . . . Coach Bob Kearns has the undivided attention of his key players as he prepares his regional bound basketball team.

*Practice makes

"Indians, do you believe?"
"We BELIEVE!"

We believed in our 15-4 basketball team, our girls' 15-4 basketball team, and our state bound girls' swimming team. They represented everything that Anderson High School stood for . . . excellence. From the classroom to the field there prevailed nothing as superior as our spirit and enthusiasm.

Being an athlete required an extra effort, and keeping up the "grade" posed yet another complication. Not only did we have to juggle school and homework, but we also, by choice, found time for "extra-curricular" activities. "Life after the 2:25 bell" delivered still another adventure — a life of endurance, drive, and discipline.

"Basketball Crazy Anderson" ... there isn't a place in Indiana that can match the basketball hysteria exhibited in the Wigwam. As Madison Heights bites the dust, "Shake" Johnson contributes two more points for the Indians. The Indians devastate the Pirates 83-51.

Football — it's not just a sport ... it's a job! A hard day of practice is all too common for these serious members of the team, (Kevin Jones, Mitch Phelps, Phil Sullivan, Dwight Sawyer).

Batters strive for the drives

"Take me out to the ballgame ... take me out to the crowd ..." and the crowds were there to watch the awesome Anderson Indians play baseball.

Varsity baseball posted an 8-14 record after playing five rated teams in their first eight games. Despite a few problems with hitting, there were many spots that brightened the ol' diamond ... Kent King's five home runs, .958 fielding average and .375 batting average added a nice touch. Ray Wilson insisted on stealing bases (19 all together) and Scotty Lewis contributed an .007 ERA.

The reserve baseball team ended their season with an impressive 8-5 record. "That is where our experience will pay off," said Coach Denny Montgomery. "We have two young teams with many players getting playing time in. We will have a lot of returning talent and varsity experience next year."

The key word was experience. Even though the team had seen better days, the glory and satisfaction of playing the game found a way to ease any disappointment.

Track teams try for the gold

What could one have said about a girls' track team who won more meets, broke more records, and gained more trophies than most ever dreamed about? Not nearly enough!

It was a season of strenuous work with a strenuous schedule. With out a doubt all that work paid off — especially when they were just one point shy of winning their first girls' state track team championship title.

Running on a brand new track could be a handicap for some track teams, but not for the powerful Indians. The boys' track team coach Nat Johnson was pleased with the boys' season saying, "We had a good year. We were short two people of being a very good team but the individuals were very good."

seventh at Semi-State and ended with an eighth place finish at state.

The AHS girls' tennis team dominated the courts with their record of 10-2 in the 1982 season. They added to that a third place finish in the NCC and a second place finish in the Sectional. No. 1 singles player Stephanie

The hungry and aggressive prevail

Zzip! Zzing! Hey what was that? That was called the perpetual motion machine. "We do not have a lot of big kids but you won't find guttier kids anywhere," stated coach Pete Russo.

The reason for the big success came from the swift offense which included the talented Ray Wilson, awesome Phil Sullivan and powerful Mike Hester. The brilliance of the offense would not have been shown without the killer instinct of the defense.

The hungry football team ushered in the season by exhausting Highland and the score board 57-14. All-State Ray Wilson rushed three touchdowns. Jeff Jackson rushed 85 yards and scored twice. Mike Hester rushed 67 yards with two touchdowns.

Madison Heights was thrashed 35-16 with Wilson scoring three touchdowns, Burt Waddy and Jeff Jackson each scored a touchdown. The remarkable shining season ended 8-2.

At practices aggressiveness and a winning spirit were stressed. "These kids always gave 100 percent," Coach P.T. Morgan explained.

Team Captain Daren Courter stated, "Mr. Morgan was a hard coach. Hard meaning he worked us for the best and to become the best." That they proved as they completed their successful season 3-5.

"Football takes young men who have little talents and self-esteem and produces them into fine young men who later will understand the meaning of dedication and hard work," commented Coach Morgan.

Freshman coach Glen Nelson stated, "It takes more than one, two or even three individual players to win a game. It takes a team of young men to accomplish that task. My goals for the team were to teach the fundamentals of football and give the players a chance to experience success. Success was exactly what the team felt against Madison Heights. They dominated their cross town rival both offensively and defensively their final season record was 4-3. And as Brett Reichart and Jeff Moore often said, "that's impressive!"

"We didn't have a weak team on our schedule, everyone was tough. When any team played against Anderson it seemed to bring out the best in them. We moved really well as a team. I think teamwork played a major part in the successes of our season," stated Head Coach Al Ihnat. Not many teams were competitive against the bump, set, spike combinations of the Anderson varsity volleyball team. They finished their season with a record 8 wins and 12 losses.

"My goals for the Reserve girls were to have fun play-

A beautiful spike by up and coming Reserve player, Revina Melton, helped the Reserve girls win their game against Madison Grant.

Successful boys stride to state

Cross Country practices involved interval pace work, ladders and L.S.D., long slow distance. Head Coach Gary Courter stated, "They were front runners, and very experienced." This was shown in their undefeated dual season. The team swept away the City Cross Country meet with Larry Wood placing first, followed by Terry Wood second, and John Harter third. Winning NCC and State were the teams goals, they placed first in NCC and 12th at State. "I watch them and help them to improve, I am their motivation," stated Coach Courter.

"He keeps us going when we are about to drop. He is a hard but caring coach," commented Kirk Hornocker.

The reserve team had an undefeated season. "They showed determination and have the potential to become a great varsity," stated Coach Courter.

Leading the girls team was the slim sensation Alissa Henning followed by the rest of the pack which was needed to have their successful season. They were undefeated in dual meets and Alisa Henning placed 2nd at State. "They were a hard caliber bunch to beat," stated Coach Corter.

Girls kick some water and win

Behind every pair of goggles and under every swimming cap emerged a hard working female swimmer. These super-splashers finished their season undefeated with a dual meet record of 11-0. In addition, the team captured a second place in the Columbus Relay, and a first in the N.C.C. As for the Sectional, they became champions for the sixth year in a row. At the state meet the girls earned the runner-up spot with Debbie Daniel breaking state record times in the 50 and 100 yard free styles. JoAnn Emerson placed third and ninth in the 100 breast stroke and 200 individual medley, respectively. Amy Shafer swam to a sixth place in the 200 medley and seventh in the 100 breast stroke. The 400 free relay team consisting of Kelly Humphrey, Noelle Hakes, Debbie Daniel and JoAnn

Competition is stiff for Kelly Humphrey, as her fellow supporters route her on at state.

Emerson recorded an impressive second place.

The Indians narrowly missed a state championship due to a disqualification of the medley relay team. "The state was a meet where many great things happened, but they were overshadowed by a feeling of frustration and disappointment because of the disqualification," stated Head Coach Ron Watson.

Strong strokes take swimmers to first in Sectional

Young team swims for success

Hard work and a lot of guts were two ingredients that all of the swimmers possessed. This was affirmed by their dual meet record of 8-3.

"We lost a lot of key seniors last year. This year's team is very young, but inexperience didn't hinder them," stated Head Coach Jim Alexander. A young team or not, these boys proved what they were made of; they swam away with 5 first places that helped them obtain second place at NCC.

During the Sectional, the powerful strokes of the swimmers took them to first place. High scorers were seniors John Barrett, first in the 100 yard back stroke and the 100 yard butterfly, and Eric Emmerson who scored first in the 100 yard breast stroke. The 400 free relay, which consisted of Barrett, Emmerson, Krall and Sandala, received first. Scott Sandala earned second in the 200 freestyle. Joel Eddy swam to second in the 200 individual medley and third in the 100 yard breast stroke. Third in the 100 yard freestyle was freshman Mike Hadley. Randy Krall earned third in the 100 freestyle. Jeff Hall swam to sixth in the 100 breast. D. Hadley, Eddy, Miller, and Busing stroked to sixth place in the medley relay. Barrett went on to become fifth at the state in the 100 yard back and 100 yard butterfly.

Arm wrestling? Not quite. Just a congratulation to co-captain Scott Sandala on a second place finish in the 200 freestyle during the Sectional.

Bodkins and Burt grapple their way to semi-state

Boys' wrestling team pins to win

There is no competition for Chris Broshar who is determined the victor of his match only 48 seconds into the competition against his opponent.

After defeating the area rivals, it was no wonder as to why the wrestlers became the city champs. Smearing Highland 36-29 and crushing Madison Heights 37-31 was easy for the Indians. The hard part was the loss of wrestlers due to injuries.

Did this dampen the spirit of the wrestlers? NO WAY! They went on to become third in the Sectional, where Chris Bodkins pinned down every opponent in the 98 pound bracket. Earning second in the contest and also advancing to Regional were Ron Allen, Troy Burt, Don Gibson, and Chris Broshar. Scott Doeling received third; he too qualified for the Regional.

At Regional, Troy Burt celebrated a third place victory and was an alternate for the Semi-State. Chris Bodkins romped opposition to receive first at Regional. He went on to place fourth at the Semi-State.

"The reserve team's season was very promising when considering next year's varsity. But which wrestlers would be able to fill the shoes of the five varsity seniors? Head Coach Al Ihnat could not say.

"If we have more people try out for the team next year it might be one of them. We definitely need more warm bodies," commented Coach Ihnat.

Three is a charm for Sectional

"Be efficient!" shouted the determined and spirited Girls' Varsity Basketball team before each game.

Efficiency does explain the combined trio of Niecy Teague, (who averaged 21 pts. per game), Jamie Davis, the expertised Captain of the team) and Sharrion Beard, (who moved like lightening when she received the ball). This trio plus Amy Sparks and Karen Riedel helped gain a flashing season of 15.4.

They proved their skill and balance by overriding both Highland and Madison Heights to capture the Sectional title for the third time in a row. "We all get along real well, and we play to our capabilities," explained Jamie Davis.

Head Coach Robert

Kearns said, "There was no selfishness of stars. It was all the team work. They passed to the player with the better shot." Team work or not the girls were talented, and nothing could stand in their way when it came to basketball.

The wigwam becomes the lions den

The Indians came back this season short seven seniors, but they still won. Why? "Because we weren't as talented; so we worked harder to win," explained Troy Lewis.

"We won because we played with our hearts. Our team was a combination of great attitude and spirit," stated Scott Lewis.

"As for strategies, we do what we want; the other teams can adjust," Head Coach Norm Held commented. Apparently, that was too much to ask of the other teams, for the Indians' Season ended 16-4. One of the greatest victories was becoming Sectional Champs by beating Highland with Troy Lewis's 46 pts., (breaking the school record), and David Jackson's last second shot.

They drove themselves to a State Runner-up finish by winning in the double overtime Marion Game 88-87, and coming within one painful point against Connersville for the State Championship. But the Indians are remembered second to none in the eyes of the fans for what other team had the Trester Award winner John Harter, and most points at M.S.A. Troy Lewis?

Buddy Youngblood explained it all when he said, "We are a family; we believe in one another. The difference in the team is there is no black or white; we are all red and green."

Determination and drive dominate

Experience paid off as Reserve Basketball players finished their season with a record of 19-1. As Head Coach Bob Freeman said, "To err is human, to repeat that error is a mistake." And luckily the reserve basketball team didn't make too many mistakes as their record showed. Freeman explained that many of his players were good prospects for varsity. This fantastic bunch included James McKinney, Chris Hensler, Todd Barrett, and the ball handler of the team, Joey Wilson.

Undefeated throughout seventh and eighth grade, the freshmen continued to show that they were Indian material with their 12-1 season. "They expressed enthusiasm and desire to learn and to improve themselves and do their best," stated Head Coach Jim Shannon.

Many of the corporations or even smaller businesses were aware of the fact that high school students were a part of their productions. How much pepsi did we devour each week?! And how often did we stop in Community Pharmacy to grab a package of gum?

The city of Anderson recognized us and we in turn recognized them for their consideration. Thank you very much for supporting our Indian.

The Quitter

When you're lost in the Wild, and you're scared as a child,
And Death looks you bang in the eye.
And you're sore as a boil, it's according to Hoyle
To cock your revolver and . . . die.
But the Code of a Man says: "Fight all you can,"
And self-dissolution is barred.
In hunger and woe, oh, it's easy to blow . . .
It's the hell-served-for-breakfast that's hard.
"You're sick of the game!" Well, now, that's a shame
You're young and you're brave and you're bright.
"You've had a raw deal!" I know — but don't squeal,
Buck up, do your damndest, and fight.
It's the plugging away that will win you the day,
So don't be a piker, old pard!
Just draw on your grit; it's so easy to quit:
It's the keeping-your-chin-up that's hard.
It's easy to cry that you're beaten — and die;
It's easy to crawfish and crawl;
But to fight and to fight when hope's out of sight —
Why, that's the best game of them all!
And though you come out of each gruelling bout,
All broken and beaten and scarred.
Just have one more try — it's dead easy to die,
It's the keeping-on-living that's hard.

This poem was written in a one room cabin in The Yukon Territory in the early 1900's. Fifty below zero cold, hungry wolves and huge bears were common dangers.

Today's challenges are different, but the lesson is the same: You can't succeed at anything if you quit!

NEWSMAKERS: "E.T. phoned home, and so did the Valley Girls (who reversed the charges). Sports played a decisive role in Anderson as the National Sports Festival in Indianapolis greeted Anderson. The Olympic torch arrived here for a 45 minute ceremony filled with talks of physical fitness and sports promoting the festival held during the month of July.

Astronaut Joseph P. Allen became the second Hoosier to land in space. Allen graduated third out of 168 from Crawfordsville High School in 1955, and he finished seventeenth out of 436 from DePaul University in 1959. On Thursday November 11, 1982, the Space Shuttle Columbia was scheduled to lift off at 7:19 EST from the Kennedy Space Center at Cape Canaveral. This five day flight was the fifth space shuttle mission and the first to carry four astronauts.

The 1982 Indianapolis National Sports Festival was the biggest amateur sports event to ever come to Indiana. This event drew attention to Indianapolis and to its new athletic facilities. More than 2,600 athletes, many of whom would represent the U.S. in the 1984 Olympics, participated in the festival from July 23 through July 31. The festival consisted of 33 summer and winter sports at 19 sites around Indianapolis. It was conducted by 6,000 volunteers and more than 250,000 people attended this event. Also more than 800 members of the news media and an ABC televi-

What kind of pantry stored 12 tons of food? The pantry used by volunteers of Project Good Neighbor. This project; which raised some 20,000 cans of food, $4,180.00 contributed by "good neighbors", and a noticeable profit from the Bill Gaither Trio concert, made it possible to feed 800 to 1,000 families. The Madison County program was developed to help the needy with utility and clothing costs. Churches, bands and Guide and Delco employees, worked in a joint effort to make the project a success.

Another successful event during the summer was the Anderson Summer Festival stretching from June 5 to June 13. It was filled with events ranging from pony

In 1982 the Indianapolis 500 saw its first racing death in nine years when driver Gordon Smiley was killed during a practice lap as his car struck the wall and burst into a fiery explosion must before he was to make a qualification attempt!

In 1982 Gordon Johncock won his second Indy Race after beating Rick Mears by sixteen hundredths of a second for the narrowest winning margin in history.

Shirley Muldowney (a two time world drag racing champion) became the first woman to win the U.S. Nationals at the Indianapolis Raceway Park in 1982.

In January 1983, talks of changing Indiana to daylight savings time began. Indiana and Arizona were the only two states in the U.S. who were not on daylight savings time. This would mean that Hoosiers would set clocks back one hour in October and forward one hour in April. The advocates of the bill felt that daylight savings time would cut energy costs, boost traffic safety, and improve the lifestyle of Hoosiers. On the other hand, the farmers, the opponents of the bill, were against a change in time because it would disturb their crops since they work by the sun. Indiana was called "backward" because of its time difference.

Entertainment

Most people asked, "What's there to do in Anderson?" Ask the kids at AHS — we knew!

When there were basketball and football games at home, those were the usual weekend activities. Junc-tions and Pizza Hut topped the list of things to do afterwards.

When there weren't games to attend, activities such as ice skating, roller skating, and bowling were at hand.

Cruising Broadway, crashing beer hill, and watching submarine races at Shady-side were things to do if you had a car. Also, if you were willing to travel to Muncie or Indianapolis, there was the possibility of dressing up and going to see The Rocky Horror Picture Show. As Mimi Fedor said, "It's absolutely unreal — it's awesome!"

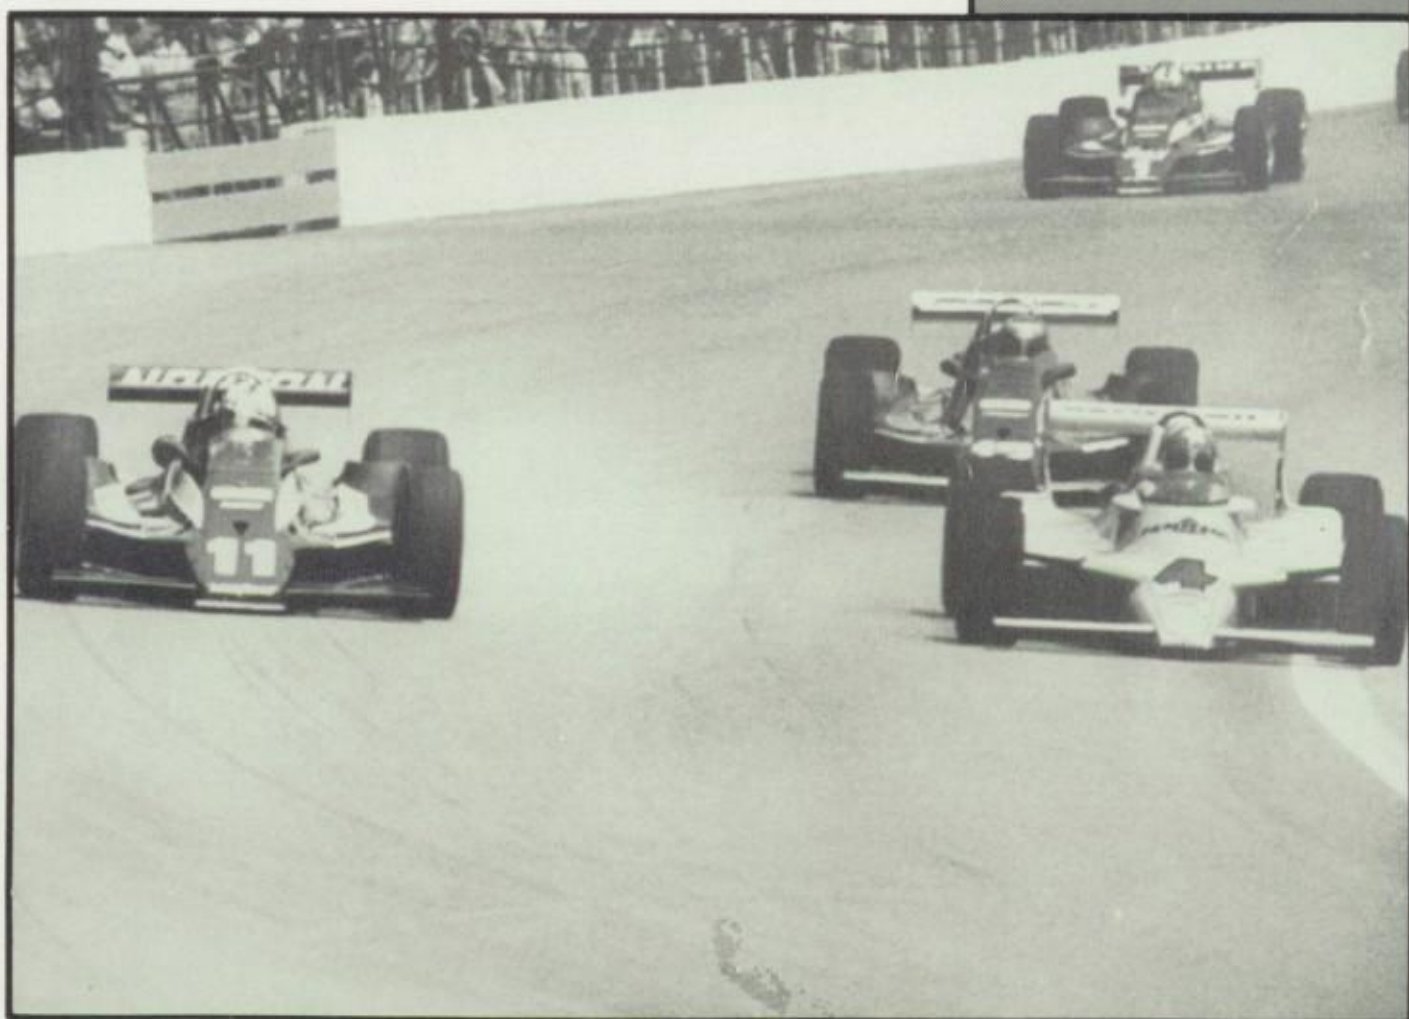

If you had to stay home for one reason or another, cable T.V. came to the rescue. Between HBO, Show-time, and the Movie Channel, there was usually something good to watch. M.T.V. with its "Video Music" also became popular through the television screen.

Video games became another pastime of Anderson teenagers, with Donkey Kong and Tempest the two most popular. The games also invaded area homes as Atari, Intellivision, and others came out with more take-offs of the arcade games.

So, what was there to do in Anderson? If you looked hard and long enough, you could find something! And, just think, if worse came to worse, you could always crank up the stereo and study!

Sports

1982-83 was definitely a year of action both on and off the field.. Although football season started with the 57-day-old National Football Strike, a negotiation to end the longest and costliest walkout in sports history was reached November 17. After that, things went along smoothly as the Washington Redskins defeated the Miami Dolphins 27-17 in the XVII Super Bowl.

In other Bowls around the country, Penn State defeated Georgia 27-23 in the Sugar Bowl. UCLA beat Michigan in the Rose Bowl 24-14. Nebraska defeated LSU 21-20 in the Orange Bowl, while undefeated SMU overcame Pittsburgh 17-3 in the Cotton Bowl.

While some fans were keeping their eyes on the football fields, others were keeping their eyes on the baseball diamonds, tennis courts and golf courses. The St. Louis Cardinals walked away with the 1982 World Series title against Milwaukee Brewers. Ricky Henderson stole 119 bases to break the single season record. Jimmy Connors won 5 sets against John McEnroe to win the Wimbledon Crown. Martina Navratilova won the #1 ranking in women's tennis for the 1982 year. Jimmy Connors won the U.S. Open Tennis Tournament by a thousand to one spot.

The Sportsman of the Year award went to Wayne Gretzky of the Houston Oilers. At age 17 he was the youngest playing athlete in a Major League sport in North America, and at age

Two runners carrying the Olympic Torch made their way through several cities in Indiana in order to light the flame of the National Sports Festival.

21 he broke the National Hockey League single season scoring record.

It was also a year of upsets in sports. Sugar Ray Leonard was forced out of the ring because of a detached retina in his eye. For his own comfort, he added that he would quit boxing because of the "lack of challenge and excitement", although several predicted that he would return to the ring. Boxing saw its first death in several years. South Korean Duk Koo Kim, 23 years old, was injured by two right hand jabs executed by Ray Mancine in the WBA lightweight title. Duk Koo Kim died later in a Los Vegas hospital of terminal brain damage.

National

A baby boom was in Hollywood bringing bundles of joy to former Charlie's angel Jaclyn Smith, actress Jill Clayburgh and Singer Michelle Phillips. It had suddenly become fashionable to have children if you were over the age of 35.

All was not sunny in the limelight, however, as actress Sophia Loren became 1982's most glamorous jail inmate, serving 17 days for tax evasion in Italy. Elizabeth Taylor also faced the courts as she filed a lawsuit against ABC-TV to block a made-for-TV movie on her life, claiming such a film would destroy her career.

Senator Richard Lugar visited AHS with advice for the students. Here he poses with Assistant Principal Lennon Brown, Principal Horace Chadbourne, Ass't Principal James Sutton, and Dr. Jack Nicholson.

The Government seemed to make the news for the out of character feat drunk driving in '82 as Congressmen Ike Andrews, Philip Crane, and Joel Dechard were arrested for drunk driving. Even noteworthy lawyer, F. Lee Bailey, was charged for driving under the influence, but managed an acquittal, later publishing a handbook of legal advice for motorists. Finally, 1982's headlines took the United States to divorce court as Senator Edward Kennedy and his wife Joan decided to end their 24-year marriage. Within the same week, Kennedy announced he would bow out of the 1984 Presidential Election.

Science filled the conversations of many, as startling breakthroughs in medical research hit the news. Barney Clark became the first human ever to receive an artificial heart and amazed all of America as he gradually recovered from the operation. Lasers and genetically engineered human insulin also brought new hope to our search for a better life.

Research and Science continued to amaze people as NASA's space shuttle began its trip into outer space. In the words of astronaut Vance Brand, "We've been on a fantastic voyage." Columbia Flight Five was the first operational mission of the world's first reusable spacecraft. NASA was quoted saying "We hope we are starting a real revolution in space."

While the astronauts were traveling above the earth, Americans made a trip to Knoxville, Tennessee to visit the World's Fair. Accommodations were scarce. Parking was at a premium and lines were devastating, but after hours of waiting, patient visitors were rewarded by what they observed in the exhibits and displays.

A Pan AM Flight 759 from New Orleans to Las Vegas crashed only minutes after take-off killing approximately 149 people. Apparently the plane was struck by lightning. The crash plowed two blocks of houses leaving several injured and homeless. But miraculously, out of all the fatalities, an infant in diapers struggled to stay alive with only a few burns to the feet.

As tragedy was taking its toll, Miami seemed to catch the intensity and exploded in riots. The ghetto needed to be sealed-off for several days while in other spots the police poisoned streets with tear gas. The riot seemed to darken the streets after a police officer mistakingly shot and killed Nevell Johnson who was passing by a video arcade.

In cables to the Associated Press, the Irish Republican Army's political arm, Sunn Fein said IRA bombers were responsible for the destruction of two popular London parks — Hyde and Regents.

The first of the bombs in Hyde park shook the windows of Buckingham Palace, just a half-mile away. Queen Elizabeth II was reported in residence at the time. The Queen's Ceremonial Household Cavalry Guard had been heading through the park for the changing of the guard at the Horse Guards military parade ground. The bomb went off in an automobile parked on Knightsbridge Road.

The blast killed two of the guardsmen and wounded 23 persons, including four soldiers and two policemen. Seven cavalry horses were

Movies

Between E.T. phoning home and Dustin Hoffman becoming the world's most famous... actress?, Andersons were treated to a wide variety of films.

Anderson students attended many different movies, but by far the biggest money-maker was E.T. — The Extra-Terrestrial. Steven Spielberg has proven himself "The most successful producer of the era" with the release of E.T. and Poltergeist — the number-one horror show of the year.

Comedies dominated the motion picture scene as Dustin Hoffman portrayed an unemployed actor whose only job opportunity was to work as a woman. In The Toy, Richard Pryor was paid $10,000 to be a child's toy for a week. As for the movie Best Friends, the critics didn't like it, but the AHS student body did.

Sylvester Stallone reappeared in the movie world with the second sequel to Rocky — Rocky III. In addition, he starred in First Blood, the story of a war-torn Green Beret trying to cope with civilian life.

Also high on the students' lists of must see's were An Officer and a Gentleman, Kiss Me Goodbye, 48 Hours, Conan the Barbarian, and Fast Times at Ridgemont High.

Then again, there were the shows that didn't quite make it. Many of these were sequels that simply weren't up-to-par. Airplane II; Grease II; Halloween III — Season of the Witch; Amityville II — The Possession; and National Lampoon's Class

Reunion (the sequel to the hilarious National Lampoon's Animal House); didn't live up to people's expectations.

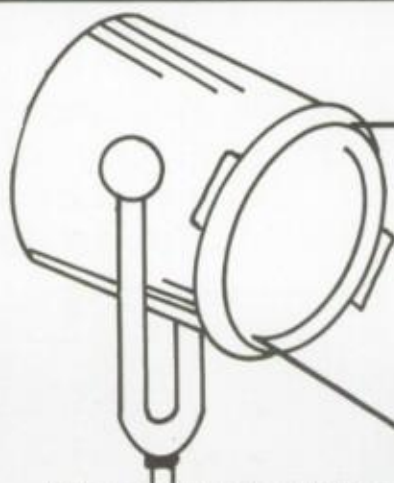

1982-1983 also wasn't the year for musicals. Neither The Best Little Whore House in Texas, starring Dolly Parton and Burt Reynolds, nor Annie, the take off of the Broadway hit, was rated by students as a movie "you have to see!"

Dead Men Don't Wear Plaid, Young Doctors in Love, and A Midsummer's

Night Sex Comedy were others that many saw — and many disliked. The Anderson Herald, though, rated the worst movie of the year as Pennies from Heaven, starring Steve Martin and Bernadette Peters.

The 266 foot Sun Sphere rises above the 1982 World's Fair in Knoxville, Tennessee. The fair attracted a daily attendance of 103,000 people from all over the world.

Spot light

Beethoven? Bach? Leah Miller is thrilled that her performance of Chopin's Fantasia Impromptu is finally over. She won first place in the Indiana Music Teachers Association contest.

Who said that only the rich and famous possessed all of the talent? There was plenty to be found right under our noses.

Leah Miller, the talented pianist, captured first place in the state piano contest conducted by Indiana Music Teachers Association, making her one of the finest pianists in Indiana at age 17. Piano was only one of her talents, though. When she sang, she captured everyone's attention, and when she spoke everyone listened. "If the Lord gives you talent, it is your responsibility to see it through and perfect it. I've always enjoyed singing and playing the piano, however, it does take time."

In another area of the arts, Kim Rheam began wearing dancing shoes when she was nine. She danced many major roles with the Young Ballet Theatre Troupe such as Cinderella, Sugar Plum Fairy and the Dying Swan. She excelled in ballet and often performed her skills around the community.

Such gracefulness and beauty is often the center of everyone's envy. Kim Rheam is one of the lucky beholders of these traits as she portrays the beautiful Cinderella.

Colophon and Credits

The 75th edition of the Indian was produced by a staff of 19 members who spent extra hours during and after school in order to record memorable events accurately and brilliantly. "We're still the one" became the theme of the Indian because the staff believed that the phrase best summarized the attitudes of the students at AHS.

Twenty-one thousand dollars went into the making of the publication. The Indian sold for an amazingly low price of $8.00 accumulating a total of 1225 books sold.

The 208 page Indian was printed by Jostens American Yearbook Company on 100 pound paper. The opening signature alternated from 60% RED — 30% YELLOW, 30% RED — 30% YELLOW, to 60% RED — 30% BLACK, 30% RED — 30% BLACK. Green dye and red foil were embossed on the cover which was made up of "smoke" fabricoid covering. The dust jacket pictures were printed by Jim Kershner, an area photographer.

Senior portraits, faculty, underclass and group pictures were taken by Root Photographers of Chicago.

Copy style was avant garde; copy was 10 point; captions were 8 point italic (with the exception of the opening pages division and the closing pages: copy was 12 point; captions were 10 point). The decorative type used on these pages and others was Brush Script. Headlines were for the most part 30 point.

The staff would like to thank the Anderson Herald and Anderson Daily Bulletin for allowing them to use their pictures on pages 110, 141, 194, 195, 196, 197, 198, and 199.

The staff hoped that the 1982-83 yearbook captured the students' feelings, their interests and their memories. They spent a great deal of time working together so that they could organize a fantastic book.

Special thanks to Leigh Ann King, Mrs. Barbara Mebane, Kim Ash, and the entire yearbook staff. Without their strength and determination the book would not have been a success.

A tradition worth keeping

"Somewhere over the rainbow . . . "
Dorothy (Coleen Courter) and her dog Toto travel to a land where witches and wizards flourish in Playmakers' presentation of The Wizard of Oz.

For 126 years we have been climbing the ladder of success and perfection. For a school so special to its inhabitants, to strive for anything less would be preposterous!

The fire in 1958 which burnt down our gym left us speechless. So we built a bigger and better one, the Wigwam, with an overwhelming capacity of 8,998. In 1982 a new gym floor was layed over the original one making the gym even more magnificent.

Starlight, starbright, first star I see tonight, Wish I may, wish I might, have the wish I wish tonight . . . to be an Indian for the rest of my life.

When the snowman in the yard hasn't "lost weight" in three months, it's time for a break ... SPRING BREAK! For Leon Mudd and Kirk Hornocker, soaking up the sun's rays on a warm, sandy beach is more fun than soaking up an education.

We're still the one

Together we helped each other through hard times and kept each other awake through even the most tiring class. Just between us, we didn't expose all the times Larry and Terry Wood switched classes and never got caught. We didn't brag about our basketball team who shamed Madison Heights along with all the other frustrated foes. We didn't praise our often copied pregame show that our "number two, no, number three", no NUMBER ONE band presented time and time again. We didn't mention the fact that for more than a century we have learned and earned our name by exercising the standards that our forefathers left for us.

Each of us, including our rivals, knew that the 1982-'83 year would forever remain special. It was another year to add to our heritage, another year for other schools to attempt to match our quality, another year to be proud of our accomplishments, and another year to be proud to be an Anderson Indian. It was now a legacy 127 years old, and that was a tradition worth keeping ... we were still the one!

Some area cheerleaders present their version of G-O-O-D L-U-C-K and wish the Indians good fortune in their game against Kokomo. The one on the end is Dolly (Leon Mudd); she's the captain!

It can't be stated in a more appropriate manner. No matter what we do or how we do it, AHS is still the one. These Indians express the qualities it takes to be a true "Believer."
